WHERE AND HOW TO EDUCATE OUR SONS.

PRACTICAL POPULAR EDUCATION FOR YOUNG MEN AND BOYS.

From the New-York Independent.

In the beautiful City of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., on the Hudson, has grown up an institution of learning that has acquired such widespread reputation, and whose merits are so well established, that it deserves more than ordinary notice. We refer, of course, to Eastman's National Business College—a report of which, prepared by George W. Bungay, Esq., of the New-York Tribune, occupies an entire page of our paper this week. The influence this institution is exerting upon the nation, and the growing favor of practical useful education, which is not to be overlooked, will cause this report to be read by young men, parents, and educators in general.

In point of success, this College may be claimed among the first of this century, if not really first, as it enjoys a regular attendance in all the departments of more than twelve hundred students, representing every loyal State in the Union. And, notwithstanding the large patronage, such is the government and superior management of the entire College, and such is the discipline and good order that prevails at all times in the study departments and in the boarding-house, as to cause general remark and commendation from citizens and parents. The great success of this institution may be attributed entirely to its judicious management and the energy and ability of the President, Prof. Eastman, in introducing and carrying out a great practical of actual business training, combining theory and practice. This novel and prominent mode of instruction is entirely original with Mr. Eastman, and is claimed by him and the many friends of the College to possess merits over every other system ever devised for developing the business capacity of young men, and preparing them for active life.

We have had our leaders in every other department of education, and it is gratifying to know that we have one in commercial science.

It is clear to every reflecting mind that our general systems of education have been wanting in that practical character which fits a man for the active duties of every-day business life, and it has been unfortunate that this matter has remained so long neglected. To effect this much needed reform no man has worked so effectually as Prof. Eastman through the great Business College he represents.

He has instructed hundreds of young men every year with great success, repudiating, as far as wisdom dictated, old systems, and constantly improving upon the new methods until he has brought out a system of practical instruction, which will work a revolution in this department of education.

As might be expected, imitators of his system of Actual Business Training are springing up in some of the cities, but the various forms and blanks used in giving instruction are so well secured to him by law, through copyright, that they can never meet with but indifferent success—and in no place could it be introduced and carried out so perfectly as here, under the supervision of its author.

The institution is patronized very largely by our most eminent merchants, and not a few of the leading business houses here are indebted to it for valuable assistants, in the capacity of accountants, book-keepers or salesmen.

Two young men from this office, who have just received their diplomas there, will enter upon responsible duties in business houses this week, and thus put in practice at once the valuable information they have acquired during their course of study there. Having watched their progress, we are enabled to indorse the institution understandingly, and commend its superior advantages to parents who have sons to educate. The terms are reasonable, and the student can enter upon a course of study any day in the year.

The reader will have a fair idea of this institution if he can picture to himself Wall-st., with its banks and insurance offices, its exchanges and commercial houses, and the Board of Brokers, the Commercial Exchange, the markets, the telegraphs, transferred to the beautiful banks of the Hudson, and alive with young men, instead of thoughtful men of middle life, and older men still riper in experience.

All necessary information may be found in Mr. Bungay's report in this paper, or any further particulars desired may be had in circulars and pamphlets by addressing Prof. EASTMAN, the President, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

The Charges Against Secretary Chase to be Investigated.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE N. Y. TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 29.

THE CHARGES AGAINST SECRETARY CHASE.

The Congressional Republican caucus this morning agreed to ask for the appointment of a Joint Committee of Congress to investigate charges made against Secretary CHASE by Father BLITZ. Senator HOWE will offer a resolution to that effect in the Senate to-morrow. This action is demanded by Mr. CHASE's friends, who desire to give an official and effectual refutation to the slurs heaped upon him.

THE FRENCH TOBACCO.

The rebels may endeavor to make capital out of the refusal of our Government to permit the French vessels to ascend the James River, but the French Minister here is satisfied that that river cannot at this time be navigated with safety, and that the vessels could not bring away one-quarter of the tobacco alleged to belong to the French Government. It is also known that the rebel Government refuses to allow the removal of the tobacco until it has paid the war tax.

HALLECK IN A NEW PORT.

By order of the War Department, Genl HALLECK has been assigned to the command of the Cavalry Bureau. All communications referring to the business of that bureau will hereafter be addressed to him.

THE FORT PILLOW MASSACRE.

A letter received here from an officer on board the Silver Cloud, gives some particulars concerning the massacre at Fort Pillow, which came under his own observation. The writer was one of a party engaged in bringing away the wounded and burying the dead. Seventy colored soldiers were found dead near the water's edge, in a place where they could offer no resistance. Many of them were shot twice and bayoneted also. Several lay with their eyes pricked out by bayonet points. The partially-burned bodies of some white soldiers lay up the fort amidst the rebel tents. They were evidently thus consumed before the eyes of these inhuman wretches. The few colored soldiers who escaped say that they threw down their arms when they surrendered, but the rebels kept on shooting them down. Rebel officers, in conversation, attempted to palliate their atrocity under the fatal excuse that our men would not surrender, and that they could not control their men. The whole number buried by this party was about 100.

THE PAY OF COLORED SOLDIERS.

The Senate amendment to the Army Appropriation Bill fixing the pay of black soldiers in the army the same as those of white, has been adopted by the House Ways and Means Committee, with the exception of making the first of May next, instead of the first of January last, as the time for it to go into effect.

Attorney-Gen. BATES, to-day, delivered an opinion entitling colored Chaplains and Surgeons to the same pay as white officers of similar grade. As colored officers are not recognized by law, a refusal had been made to pay them more than was received by colored soldiers, ten dollars per month.

THE CASE OF THE SAXON AGAIN.

It will be recollected that when the pirate Alabama captured the ship Tuscaloosa off Cape Good Hope, she transferred the plunder to the British ship Saxon, which was afterward captured by the Vanderbilt. During the seizure of the Saxon her mate was accidentally killed by CHARLES DANENHOWER, acting master's mate of the Vanderbilt. The London Times, and other abettors of secession in England, made much ado over this outrage upon John Bull, and through representation of Lord LYONS, DANENHOWER was placed under arrest and tried by Court-martial assembled at Philadelphia. The witnesses (part of the crew of the Saxon) were brought over from England. After full investigation of the case the Court has fully acquitted DANENHOWER of all blame in the matter, and he has been restored to his former position.

THE SKIRMISH AT WARRENTON.

In the skirmish at Warrenton, Va., last Saturday, between a detachment of CROWE's Cavalry Division and MOSBY's guerrillas, the following Union soldiers were wounded:

Wm. R. Williams, 1st New-Jersey.
Porter Fink, Co. F, 16th Pennsylvania.
Wm. H. Miller, Co. E, 8th Pennsylvania.
Pat. Gallagher, Co. H, 1st Massachusetts.
Jno. Seward, Co. I, 2d Pennsylvania.
Augustus Hillman, Co. I, 16th Pennsylvania.
Jack Gunns, Co. H, 1st Maine.
Jno. Chamberlain, Co. I, 2d Pennsylvania.

TIMOROUS TEAMSTERS.

Great inconvenience and injury to the public service having arisen from the failure or refusal of teamsters and other employes of the Quartermaster's Department to go to the front and other points when so required, the Secretary of War has ordered that, hereafter, any employe of the department who fails or refuses to obey such orders, shall forfeit all pay and allowances which may be due to him, and shall also be held liable to arrest and trial before a military tribunal for disobedience of orders, according to the 60th article of war.

INCREASING EXPENSES.

The House Military Committee has agreed upon an amendment giving Paymasters' Clerks $1,200 a year, instead of $900.

THE NEW NAVY-YARD.

The House Naval Committee are still in parturient difficulty over the question as to where the new navy-yard is to be placed. The merits of New-London were fully discussed to-day without eliciting a decision. In case no site with eligible points can be found elsewhere, New-York members will call particular attention to the advantages of a site seventy-five miles above New-York City, on Hudson River.

DAHLGREN ON DUTY.

Admiral DAHLGREN left here to-day to resume command of the Iron-clad fleet off Charleston.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 29.

A RECONNOISSANCE TO MADISON COURT-HOUSE.

Advices from the Army of the Potomac state that a brigade of cavalry, under Gen. DEVIN, went out yesterday to Madison Court-house, on a reconnoissance, and found a party of about thirty rebels in the place, most of whom they captured. No force of the enemy was discovered anywhere in that vicinity, although it was currently reported that they had crossed the Rapidan, and were moving toward our right. The expedition returned without any loss.

THE TEN-FORTY LOAN.

The subscriptions to the ten-forty loan reported at the Treasury to-day were $653,000.

NAVAL.

Commodore WILLIAM SMITH has been ordered to the command of the Lancaster, and Commodore GERRY has been ordered to the command of the Pensacola Naval Station.

Commodore TAYLORSON has been ordered to command the steamship New-Hampshire.

ADMIRAL DAHLGREN.

The steamer Harvest Moon has left Washington Navy-yard, with Admiral DAHLGREN on board, for Charleston.

THE PAY OF SOLDIERS.

The bill reported by Mr. SUMNER, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to-day, and on which early action will be taken, increases the pay of privates in the army to $16, corporals, $18 a month, and non-commissioned officers proportionately. The rations, pepper excepted, are reduced to the old ration of 1861. Colored soldiers are put on the same footing, as to pay, rations and clothing, as white soldiers.

A DINNER GIVEN BY JOHN MINOR BOTTS.

JOHN MINOR BOTTS gave a dinner yesterday, at which Gens. Grant, Sedgwick, Hancock, Birney, Humphreys, Robinson, Williams, Ingalls, Rawlings, Mott, Carr, Webb, Gibbon, Ellis, and Morris were present. The affair was of the most sumptuous character.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 29.

NAVIGATION OF THE MISSISSIPPI.

Mr. GRIMES, of Iowa, (Union,) presented the memorial of ALANSON PENFIELD, Clerk in the Treasury Department, praying for the construction of reservoirs for supplying the Upper Mississippi with a medium stage of water for navigation throughout the dry Summer months, and a canal from the head of Lake Superior to the Red River of the North, via Sandy Lake, a distance of forty miles; thence via Crow Wing, Leaf River and Ottartal Lake to Breckinridge, a total distance of 240 miles; thus opening navigation by the Red River and Saskatchawan for 2,000 miles, to the base of the Rocky Mountains, and furnishing an outlet to the Hudson Bay region. This would require an improvement 43 miles less than the Fox and Wisconsin River canal route, and 40 miles shorter than the Illinois and Mississippi Canal.

THE INDIANS.

Mr. RAMSEY, of Minnesota, (Union,) introduced a bill for the benefit and better management of the Indians, by which the President is authorized to locate them upon new reservations, Congress retaining the power to vacate such reservations, when the President can locate them again and sell their lands.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mr. DOOLITTLE, of Wisconsin, (Union,) presented a memorial from citizens of Wisconsin asking for an increase of 10 per cent on foreign wool. Referred to the Committee on Finances.

Mr. DOOLITTLE also presented the resolution of the Legislature of Wisconsin, asking for the improvement of the locks on the Erie Canal. Referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. SPRAGUE, of Rhode Island, (Union,) introduced the resolutions of the Legislature of Rhode Island, asking for reimbursement by the Government of money paid by that State to officers and men mustered into the service. Referred to the Military Committee.

Mr. HARLAN, of Iowa, (Union,) introduced the resolutions of the Iowa Legislature, asking for an increase of mail facilities in that State. Referred.

THE RED RIVER DISASTER AND COTTON SPECULATION.

Mr. HENDERSON, of Missouri, (Union,) offered a joint resolution to provide for the printing of the report of the Commission of which Major-Gen. Irwin McDowell was President, to examine into cotton speculations and frauds on the part of officers in the West.

A modification by Mr. GRIMES, requesting the Secretary of War to transmit the report, was accepted.

On motion of Mr. LANE, of Kansas, the words "if not incompatible with the public interests," were added.

An amendment of Mr. GRIMES', requesting all information touching the subject or touching the persons supposed to be implicated in the report, was adopted.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, (Union,) Mr. FESSENDEN, of Maine, (Union,) and others, thought the resolution had best not be adopted now.

Mr. HENDERSON said that information on the subject was desired now, as it would bear on the bill pending before this body; and this was the only authentic way to obtain it. One was the bill concerning negroes freed during the war. There was a vast deal in the report of the commission bearing upon that subject. Another was the bill reported from the Commerce Committee putting it in the power of the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase all the product of the Southern States. He had read letters the last three days from the Red River, saying that our defeat there was on account of speculation. The cavalry in advance on that occasion, numbering 3,000 men, had 205 wagons, which became entangled and confused the whole action, and brought on disaster.

Mr. WILSON wanted to know if the Senator charged that the Red River expedition was undertaken for the mere purpose of gathering cotton.

Mr. HENDERSON said: no such thing. He merely wanted to know what this brigade of cavalry wanted with 205 wagons, unless it was to gather up the products of the country. He had merely stated that the extraordinary number of wagons were, as charged by the newspapers, for the purpose of gathering cotton.

Mr. CONESS, of California, (Union,) stated, on what he considered the highest authority, that these wagons were part of the regular train of the army; and whatever might have been the defect of the generalship which brought them there, the statement that they were intended to bring in cotton was not correct.

Mr. HENDERSON made no charges himself; but it was singular that the disaster had followed the statements and predictions of the newspaper writers. He read a letter from Grand Ecore, dated four days before the battle, alleging a conflict of authority between BANKS and Admiral PORTER, and stating that the latter was seizing cotton on land as naval prize, and predicting disaster. These predictions, the results, in his opinion, seemed to confirm. He hoped the statements were incorrect, and he hoped if there had been no disagreement between Admiral PORTER and Gen. BANKS. If not, it should be made known.

Mr. CONESS denounced the statement read as a cruel and base slander on Admiral PORTER, which he had the highest authority for denying.

Mr. HENDERSON was glad the Senator could so authoritatively deny the statement. He was a personal acquaintance of the Admiral, and had a high opinion of him. If these statements were having a pernicious effect upon the public, and, if untrue, should be refuted.

The resolution, as amended, was then adopted.

MINT IN OREGON.

Mr. NESMITH, of Oregon, (Dem.,) called up the Senate bill to establish branch mints at Carson City, Nevada, and Dalles City, Oregon.

An amendment, striking out Carson City, was adopted, and the bill passed.

THE NATIONAL CURRENCY BILL.

The National Currency Bill came up in order, the question being on the Finance Committee's amendment to the forty-first section, as proposed to be amended by Mr. POMEROY, of Kansas, (Union,) by the insertion of a provision exempting from State taxation that portion of the capital invested in or based on United States bonds.

Mr. CLARK, of New-Hampshire, (Union,) made an earnest speech against the amendment of Mr. POMEROY as being calculated to interfere with the State banking laws, and array the banks of the States against the national currency.

Mr. LANE, of Kansas, (Union,) said, except in the present emergency, he would count the idea of a United States banking law as a duty he owed to his country and his constituency. He was now only induced to support the measure because his friends thought it a necessary measure in these times of war, and because he would do everything to support his country.

Mr. COWAN, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) favored state taxation upon these banks.

Mr. THOMSON, of Maryland, (Union,) said a thousand dollars in gold will purchase eighteen hundred dollars in currency, and that amount can be invested in United States bonds, bearing an interest of six per cent, with the principal payable in gold. The bank can loan this eighteen hundred dollars out to its customers, and while it will receive one hundred and eight dollars interest the representative of that eighteen hundred dollars is in the bank in bonds bearing interest during the whole period in which the loans are going on. The rate on the original investment will then be over twenty per cent, or two hundred and eight dollars per annum. These banks are also authorized in this bill to issue, proportionately to their deposits to their full amount, receiving six per cent, and the aggregate amount of interest is to be added to the eighteen hundred dollars of bonds.

This being the financial operation of the bill, all the State capital will inevitably come into these banks. It was a great mistake to suppose that the credit of the Government depends alone upon our ability to meet our national obligations. It is as much involved in the ability of the States to meet theirs. If we are unable to meet our State obligations it will be certain to produce an inability on the part of the Government to meet its obligations.

The amendment of Mr. POMEROY was rejected by a vote of 26 to 11, as follows:

YEAS—Messrs. Chandler, Conness, Harding, Howard, Lane of Indiana, Pomeroy, Ramsey, Sherman, Sprague, Sumner, Wilkinson—11.

NAYS—Messrs. Buckalew, Carlile, Clark, Collamer, Cowan, Davis, Dixon, Fessenden, Foote, Foster, Grimes, Hale, Harlan, Henderson, Hendricks, Howe, Johnson, Lane of Kansas, McDougall, Morgan, Morrill, Nesmith, Powell, Riddle, Ten Eyck, Van Winkle, Willey, Wilson—26.

Mr. HOWARD, of Michigan, (Union,) offered an amendment to the amendment of the Committee, providing that the taxes upon the capital or value of shares by State authority, for State or other purposes, shall be in the State where the bank is situated.

The amendment was rejected by a vote of 27 to 11, as follows:

YEAS—Messrs. Chandler, Conness, Harlan, Hendricks, Howard, Morrill, Pomeroy, Ramsey, Sherman, Sumner, Wilkinson—11.

NAYS—Messrs. Anthony, Buckalew, Clark, Cowan, Collamer, Davis, Dixon, Fessenden, Foote, Foster, Grimes, Hale, Henderson, Howe, Johnson, Lane of Indiana, Lane of Kansas, Morgan, Nesmith, Powell, Riddle, Sprague, Ten Eyck, Van Winkle, Willey, Wilson—27.

The Senate then, at 5 o'clock, adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 29.

THE MISSOURI CONTESTED ELECTIONS.

Mr. RIGBY, of California, (Union,) of the Select Committee on the charges against Mr. BLAIR, of Missouri, moved that the evidence be printed.

Mr. McCLURG, of Missouri, (Union,) reminded the House that when the report was made, he waived his remarks in order that the Tax Bill might be acted on. He proceeded to reiterate his charges regarding Gen. BLAIR having been engaged in liquor speculations.

Mr. HIGBY, of California, (Union,) obtained the floor but yielded to

THE BILL TO INCREASE SOLDIER'S PAY.

Mr. SCHENCK, of Ohio, (Union,) who, from the Military Committee, reported the Senate bill to legalize and increase the pay of soldiers, giving notice that he would call it up at an early day.

THE VOTING ON THE TAX BILL.

Mr. HARRIS, of Maryland, (Dem.) asked leave to record his vote on the internal tax bill.

Mr. STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) objected to the gentleman from Maryland (HARRIS) doing so.

Mr. VORHEES, of Indiana, (Dem.) said there would be no objection to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (STEVENS) recording his own name.

Mr. STEVENS replied that he did vote whether his name was on the record or not. If it was not on the record he did not care anything about it.

Mr. DAWSON, of Pennsylvania, (Dem.) hoped that his colleague (STEVENS) would be permitted to record his name.

The Speaker said that the name of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (STEVENS) was not on the record.

Mr. STEVENS repeated that he had voted, whether it was there or not.

Mr. VOORHEES—I would ask whether you did not vote for the bill with reluctance.

Mr. STEVENS—The bill was so mangled that I almost wished I was a "locofoco," that I might vote against it.

THE BLAIR AND M'CLURG CONTROVERSY.

Mr. RIGBY, the Chairman of the Select Committee on Mr. BLAIR's case, hoped the discussion would now come to an end. He, and doubtless the House, has become disgusted with the Missouri controversy. He would not now speak but for the fact that Mr. BLAIR had made the barefaced assertion that PORTER, who forged or altered the liquor order, was a Treasury agent. Mr. HIGBY maintained that the charge of criminality against the Treasury officials was not sustained by the facts.

Mr. CLAY, of Kentucky, (Union,) a member of the Select Committee, said Mr. BLAIR was completely exonerated from the charge against him. But he did not agree with the gentleman (Mr. HIGBY,) as to the Treasury officers. He concluded by saying that PORTER was the forger, and BOWMAN furnished him with work.

The report and evidence were ordered to be printed.

THE BLAIR CORRESPONDENCE.

Mr. DAWES, of Massachusetts, (Union,) offered a resolution, calling upon the President to communicate to the House copies of all letters, notes, telegrams, orders and other documents which are referred to in his Message of yesterday, which have connection with the answer to the resolution asking whether F. P. BLAIR holds any appointment or commission in the military service.

Mr. BROWN, of West Virginia, (Union,) moved to lay the resolution on the table. Negative 30, against 62.

THE TREASURY PRINTING BUREAU.

Mr. BROOKS, of New-York, (Dem.,) offered an amendment, which was read for information, viz.: "That the President communicate to the House, as soon as possible, all vouchers or depositions in his possession or in the possession of the Treasury Department, respecting the fitting-up of a bureau in the Treasury Department building for printing money, bonds or other obligations of the United States."

Mr. DAWES, of Massachusetts, (Union,) had no objection.

Mr. STEVENS thought it ought to be acted upon separately from the subject before the House.

Mr. BROOKS asked him whether he would enable him to do so?

Mr. STEVENS replied he would agree to asking general consent.

Mr. SCHENCK, of Ohio, (Union,) emphatically objected. The proposition had nothing to do with the pending resolution.

Mr. BROOKS expressed his surprise at the sensitiveness of gentlemen on the other side to his making a few remarks in support of his amendment wishing on the President for information. Under our form of government we are entitled to information from the Executive when it is not detrimental to the public interests. The information called for by the resolution of the gentleman from Massachusetts (DAWES) is not detrimental to the public interests, but likely to be of public good. We have not only the right to know what is going on in the Executive Department, but a right to know what is going on in the other departments of the Government. In December or January last, after the close of the holidays, he (BROOKS) submitted some allegations connected with the Treasury Department, which were disregarded by gentlemen on the other side. They had made no use of the testimony submitted, and at this he had expressed his surprise.

Mr. CASSWELL, of Maryland, (Union,) objected to the gentleman from New-York (BROOKS) proceeding with his remarks.

Mr. BROOKS remarked that gentlemen might as well allow him to proceed now as at any other time. He (BROOKS) would go before the high court of the newspaper press if the Republicans would not allow him to speak here of the plundering and stealing of the public treasure. Did the gentleman from Maryland (CASSWELL) make a point of order on that?

Mr. CASSWELL replied that he would make the point of "public morals." The remarks of the gentleman from New-York (BROOKS) were not applicable to the subject pending.

The Speaker said that the gentleman from New-York (BROOKS) was not in order.

Mr. BROOKS remarked that the greater part of to-day had been occupied in discussing whether a certain quantity of liquor had been purchased and paid for by somebody's money. The broadest latitude in debate had been allowed respecting a member of the Cabinet, and yet when he approached another member of the Cabinet the gentleman from Maryland (CASSWELL) objected on a matter of "public morals." Ten years ago, while a member of the House, he (BROOKS) endeavored to save his Whig friends from injury in connection with the Galphin fraud, and in relation to which the Whigs were attacked by the Democrats. But now a general change was raised, by the Republicans at the very moment he approached the subject of the Treasury. Several gentlemen on the Republican side had called him to order because he wished the public to understand what was done with the public's money.

Several gentlemen on the Republican side called Mr. BROOKS to order.

The Speaker said that the gentleman from New-York (BROOKS) was not in order, adding that the Chair would continue to administer the rules impartially.

Mr. BROOKS offered another resolution, preceded by a preamble, calling for the appointment of a committee to examine into and report on the condition of the Treasury Department, and especially as to the bureau wherein are printed notes, bonds and other obligations of the United States, with power to employ experts, and that the committee suggest or recommend such changes for facilitating business and for the protection of the public interests as may be necessary.

Mr. GARFIELD, of Ohio, (Union,) moved the following as a substitute:

"That the Committee on the Conduct of the War inquire into the subject, and that Ben. Wade Brooks be summoned to give testimony on, in, or on all points of which he (BROOKS) has knowledge in connection with the Treasury Department."

Mr. BROOKS said that he would accept of the substitute of the gentleman from Ohio, (GARFIELD.)

Mr. STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, remarked: "Let us decide one question before we take up another."

Mr. BROOKS repeated that he did not object to the resolution of the gentleman from Ohio, (GARFIELD,) and he would now abandon the floor, if he was permitted to publish his speech in the Globe of to-morrow. He asked this permission of the House.

Mr. CASSWELL and others on the Republican side objected.

Mr. COX, of Ohio, (Dem.,) and Mr. JOHNSON, of Pennsylvania, (Dem.,) and others on the opposition side of the House, loudly called for "order."

Mr. DAWES, of Massachusetts, said that the gentleman from Pennsylvania, (STEVENS,) had charged that he, (DAWES,) had opened the flood-gates of discussion. He, (DAWES,) did not know what the gentleman (STEVENS,) meant by his remarks. He, (DAWES,) had found by experience, that it did more hurt to cover up the faults of friends than to give the largest liberty to those who desired to investigate. If a man brought a groundless charge, give him rope enough, and he will hang himself. If you do not, he will hang you. (Laughter.) He, (DAWES,) was not to be governed in his line of conduct, by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, (STEVENS.)

Mr. BROOKS resumed his remarks, but was again interrupted by Mr. CASSWELL, of Maryland.

Mr. BROOKS, I do not yield the floor.

Mr. COX, of Ohio, and Mr. JOHNSON, of Pennsylvania, and others, called Mr. CASSWELL to order.

Much confusion now prevailed all over the House.

Mr. BROOKS, after the noise and confusion had somewhat subsided, said: Millions of public money had been embezzled in the Bureau of Printing, and much evil produced by the conversion of the Treasury building into a house of orgies and bacchanals. If the galleries were cleared so that language could be uttered not fit for female ears, he (BROOKS) could show that every word he said was more than true.

Mr. BROOMALL, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) asked: "Are such remarks in order?"

THE SPEAKER—The remarks of the gentleman from New-York (BROOKS) do not apply to the pending resolution.

Mr. BROOMALL—I ask that the rules be enforced.

Mr. MILLER, of Pennsylvania, (Dem.,) wished to know whether it was not in order to tell the truth?

The Speaker replied that the gentleman might tell the truth about something in California or elsewhere, but still it would not be applicable to the subject before the House.

Mr. JOHNSON, of Pennsylvania, said that the Chair could not judge better than any other member as to the appropriateness of the remarks.

Mr. BROOMALL—I ask whether it would be in order for me to ask that the gentleman from New-York (BROOKS) take his seat?

The Speaker directed Mr. BROOKS to take his seat.

Mr. BITLER, of Pennsylvania, (Dem.,) said: Does my colleague (BROOMALL) object to the gentleman from New-York (BROOKS) telling the truth?

THE SPEAKER—The gentleman from New-York (BROOKS) must take his seat unless he appeals from the decision of the Chair.

Mr. BROOKS said he was very much verged for the Chair to object. He (BROOKS) had made his remarks in good faith and for the public good.

Mr. SCHENCK, of Ohio, said: There must be some deference paid to the order of the Speaker. The remainder of the sentence was lost in vociferations for "order," "order," "order."

The Speaker said that those who so readily called to order were themselves out of order.

Mr. SCHENCK—I ask that the member (BROOKS) be required to take his seat.

Messrs. SCHENCK, COX, JOHNSON, of Pennsylvania, and others on both sides, were all talking at the same time, while the Speaker was hammering with his gavel to enforce order.

Mr. BROOMALL on one side of the hall, and Mr. BROOKS on the other, indulged in a heated and hot colloquy, but owing to the confusion, the purport was not heard by the reporter's gallery, further than Mr. BROOKS said to Mr. BROOMALL: "This is not Bantamtown, but the Capitol of the United States."

Mr. BROOMALL's words were not heard.

The Speaker directed Messrs. SCHENCK and BROOKS to take their seats, saying this was the second time he had so ordered.

On motion of Mr. MILLER, of Pennsylvania, (Dem.,) Mr. BROOKS was allowed to proceed in order—Yeas 54, Nays 36.

Mr. BROOKS apologized to the Chair, saying he did not take his seat when first requested, because he did not hear the request, owing to the confusion.

Mr. BEAMAN, of Michigan, (Union,) called Mr. BROOKS to order.

Mr. BROOKS said he should not struggle much for that. He then began to read from a paper in his hand "the question to be decided is whether we shall call on the Executive for information, and whether a resolution shall be passed, so that the House may be informed of the character of SYMONS, M. CLEAR, who has charge of the printing of the public money."

The Speaker again reminded the gentleman that he was not in order.

Mr. BROOKS—I will scarcely no further, but take my seat.

Mr. DAWES, of Massachusetts, apologized to Mr. STEVENS and the House for the language he had applied to that gentleman. No man had more confidence in the Secretary of the Treasury than he himself.

The Speaker reminded the gentleman that the subject of the Secretary of the Treasury was not before the House.

Mr. DAWES' resolution calling for information relative to Mr. BLAIR, was agreed to.

GOVERNMENT OF STATES IN REBELLION.

The House took up the bill relative to providing a republican form of Government for States subverted or overthrown by the rebellion.

Mr. SCOFIELD, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) made a speech showing that slavery has been an element of discord in our republican system, has produced the present contingency of affairs and ought therefore to be removed.

THE TREASURY INVESTIGATION AGAIN.

Mr. GARFIELD, of Ohio, (Dem.,) offered a preamble quoting a remark heretofore made by F. P. BLAIR, to the effect "that Secretary CHASE is making use of the income from abandoned plantations to carry out the programme of the Pomeroy secret circular, and was against the Administration that gave him place, that nobody believes he has retired as a candidate for the Presidency, although he said so in a letter, that he is working underground and using his public position to promote his own political schemes, thus running the Pomeroy machine." The preamble further quotes from the New-York World and the Cincinnati Gazette, which papers have contained articles charging frauds in the fractional currency, etc., and says, as Hon. JAMES BROOKS has to-day repeated the substance of those articles, therefore,

Resolved, That a Committee of Five be appointed by the Speaker of the House to investigate the truth of the allegations above quoted, and of any other allegations affecting the integrity of the Treasury Department, and that they have power to send for persons and papers.

Mr. ARNOLD, of Pennsylvania, (Dem.,) objected to the introduction of the resolution, and, therefore, it could not be entertained, general consent being required by the rules.

The House took a recess till 7 o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

THE GOVERNMENT OF REBEL STATES.

Mr. STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) offered a substitute for the bill to provide for a republican government for States overthrown or subverted by rebellion, declaring that the Confederate States, by waging an unjust war, have no right to claim exemption from the extreme rigors and rights of war. That none of the States which have seceded with the consent of a majority of their citizens can be tolerated and considered as within the Union, so as to be allowed a representation in Congress or take part in the political government. That they cannot participate in our amendments to the Constitution, and when amendments thereto are proposed, they can be adopted by a two-thirds vote of the non-seceding States. Whenever the Federal forces (counting the seceding States) they shall be regarded as separate Territories, and be represented in the House of Representatives, the same as other Territories.

Messrs. DAWES, MORRILL, WILLIAMS, KELLEY, and BEAMAN, all of Pennsylvania, defined their positions at length. Mr. BALDWIN, of Michigan, also made a speech.

Arrival of Sick and Wounded Soldiers.

The steamer Fulton brought two hundred and fifty-seven sick and wounded soldiers from Fortress Monroe, arriving yesterday morning. She experienced severe weather on her trip up and was somewhat delayed by this on the way. The Fulton is not a proper boat on which to carry the sick through; the men did not complain much of the accommodations. Two of the men died just as the boat reached this City, their names were HAMILTON CAPLE, Sixteenth New-York Battery, and EDWIN H. PERRY, Co. B, Twenty-fifth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers. Their effects were turned over to the Surgeon in charge of the De Camp General Hospital, David's Island. The men were buried by Mr. A. J. CAMP, the Government undertaker. The Hospital steamer, Thomas P. Way, took the men to David's Island, where they will be most kindly cared for. About six o'clock last evening a train of cars arrived in Jersey City, having on board about eleven hundred sick soldiers which left Washington on Thursday morning. Five hundred were left at Newark; about one hundred at Central Park, and the rest were also taken to David's Island on the Thomas P. Way.

EUROPEAN AFFAIRS.

OUR PARIS CORRESPONDENCE.

The Mexican Affair—Maximilian, His Plans, Purposes and Feelings—Paris Frightened—Miscellaneous.

PARIS, Tuesday, April 12, 1864.

The French journals are in ecstacies over the termination of the Mexican affair. They talk loud about that reconstitution of the Latin race which is to oppose a barrier to the extension of the Yankee race, but in fact they are glad to see France fairly out of a bad scrape. Now they say the French army is to be recalled, regiment by regiment, their war indemnity is to be paid off, a grand and prosperous Empire is to be founded, which shall owe its life and happiness to the great man who rules over France, and who alone saw to the end of the enterprise he was undertaking; and the sum total of the affair is that the glory of this great work will return to the nation, which is always found taking the lead in every noble and generous work of civilization.

This is the style of the panegyrists of the Government. But the Prince who is to be the agent in the carrying out of this grand programme, what of him? He, poor fellow, has fallen ill over it, and, to the disappointed of the superstitious, has made another false start; for, on the point of starting, the telegraph tells us, he has, on the contrary, gone to bed with a fever. A condemned man, however bold he may be, generally grows weak in the knees when he catches the first glimpse of the gallows. So too the Prince, after making a visit to the ships which in a few hours were to start with him on his perilous voyage, went back to his palace and threw himself on his bed with a fever.

The events of the last week were not in fact calculated to prepare the Prince's nerve for the first act in the play. His family and the Emperor Napoleon demanded a complete renunciation of his pretensions to the throne of Austria, while the King of Belgium and the Princess's own instincts counselled him to hold on to them. Then the money brokers of the new Empire began to grow timid about advancing funds, and the Prince's numerous creditors grew clamorous at not seeing their claims guaranteed. To show this pyramid of the Prince's troubles, the Emperor Maximilian lost his patience, and wrote to him that if he did not leave by a certain time he should repeal the contract, and recommend the Mexicans to accept the young Prince CARLOS BONAPARTE in his place! This was the last hair on the camel's back, and the Prince yielded. But what a rough road this young man has had to travel over in this first step on the road to greatness! And it only a smoother track awaited him on the other side!

The France, of yesterday, says, in regard to the settlement between the Prince and his family, that the former renounced only conditionally his Austrian rights, and that, in case of the abandonment of the throne of Mexico by himself or his descendants, no matter, for what cause, the right to the throne of Austria should be revived; while the Constitutionnel of this morning, (both Ministerial and well-informed journals,) declares that the Prince has renounced his rights in Austria unconditionally and definitively. It is probable that the latter journal is the more correctly informed on this question.

The new Emperor has wisely decided to recruit a corps of 5,000 men in Austria for the defense of his throne in Mexico. His Majesty will thus by putting into the field an army entirely devoted to his service, and perfectly capable of defending him against all the opposition the Mexicans can muster—but where is the pay of this faithful army to come from?

The Sualis and Tunes leave Paris to-day, to return to their homes in Africa, after a stay of nearly a year at Paris. It has not been thought prudent in the interest of the morals and the health of these children of the desert to leave them any longer in contact with the influences which surround them here. They will be replaced by a corps of 200 men taken from the sons of the highest native Algerian families, and this body of young men will perform the service of the palace alone, in conjunction with the Cent-Gardes. As there will probably be some negroes in this corps of young African aristocrats, we will hereafter see negroes inside the palace, instead of Swiss mounting guard at the door.

The people of Paris had a first-class fright on Sunday evening last, at 8 o'clock. Such crowds of men in blouses all of once appeared in the streets in the neighborhood of the Place de la Concorde, yelling and gesticulating, as induced many people to believe that another revolution had broken out, and preparations were made by the timid against a siege. It was the first time the blouses of Paris had shown any life since the coup d'état, and this wakeful about a monster balloon, which had been advertised to go up three Sundays in succession, and which had again failed to start. A hundred thousand people had waited till dark to see the sight, a large proportion of whom had paid an admission fee, and when they found the balloon would not go they did very much as people in America do under like circumstances—they tried to lynch the showman and destroy his "traps." But the police prevented any serious damage being done, and the exasperated mob, which was most formidable in size, spent its revenge in harmless yelling through the principal streets. The people in the Rue de Rivoli, who were not in the secret of the sudden fear, anticipated nothing less than the sacking of the Tuileries!

We are to have also at Paris a grand celebration in honor of SHAKESPEARE's three hundredth birthday. An English and a French committee have united in the scheme this other. On the French committee are found the names of VICTOR HUGO, GEORGE SAND, ALEXANDER DUMAS, JULES FAVRE, JULES JANIN, MICHELET, THEOPHILE GAUTIER, and other celebrities of the literary world.

At the next election for a vacancy in the French Academy, which takes place next week, it is said that the eminent critic, JULES JANIN, will be elected without opposition. He will fill the fauteuil occupied by the late ALFRED DE VIGNY. He is the favorite candidate of the journalists and the literary world generally.

OUR LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

Reception of Garibaldi—An English Presentation—Home or Death—Party on Russell—The Conference—Two Hostess Emperors and Empress and Pio Nine—American News—The Sunnyside—The Manoeuvrings of the Tycoonocracy.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 12, 1864.

GARIBALDI has brought Summer, or the Summer has brought GARIBALDI. The weather is lovely—the first we have had; and yesterday the working classes of London received the great Italian, and hailed him over to the Duke of Sutherland, one of the richest nobles of Scotland. The papers will tell you this, with a balmy atmosphere, and the whole lower strata of London upheaving coming up from its cellars, and down from its garrets, there was the most wretched, struggling, forlorn apology for a procession ever seen since Falstaff mustered his regiment with which he refused to march through Coventry. And Falstaff might well have refused to have marched through the Borough, Whitehall, Charing Cross and Pall Mall, with the refuse of the mob societies, and shared Dogberry in their trappings and rouge. He rode in the carriage of the Duke of Sutherland, with His Grace's pretty bewigged coachman behind him, and The Guard in Brownwood and laced flunkies behind him, with all the rabble of London pleading assist to shake hands with him, until the doctors procession, with its noisy playing bands, was lost in the distance, and he here was dragged through a crowd of half a million of people as through a sea, half an hour behind his escort. There was no misery, the police took no part, except to keep people from being hurt. Every man foolish enough to have money in his pockets got rid of it, and GARIBALDI arrived, at last, at the mansion of the Duke, Sir Hist, where he found the inevitable Earl of Shrewbury and a large circle of the nobility assembled to do him honor.

Why such a disorderly affair, and no military, and no police regulations? Because the Government couldn't recognize it, don't you know? But the Government is responsible for what it permits, and hence the presence of MAZZINI and GARIBALDI coupled together in this reception, and the people paraphrase the motto 'Rome or death!' Yes, but this is a free country, don't you know? No, I do not—not particularly. When the Portugueses of Dashed wanted to shake hands in Hyde Park, in honor of SHAKESPEARE, the Government wouldn't permit it? Yes, but another party might want to plant a tree for somebody else, and then it would be all dashed over, don't you know? Precisely so, and another party might want to give a reception to some other sort of hero, and the tickets would be knocked off every day in the week. I counter that! don't see any difference. If the authorities thought proper to allow a public reception, they might as well have that as well as that. Well, indeed they might.

So far my conversation, while having a watch my sister, I put that the question of our ex-candle-maker has its grave side to it, it is undoubted. It has a political and a religious character. The revolutionary element worked with him, who bore the Red Pole. The Mazzinian Red Republicans shout around him, and he rides in the carriage and accepts the hospitalities of those very Protestant noblemen, Socialists and SHAFTESBURY. The Irish of London, for a wonder, kept the peace. They had their fight—Popes vs. GARIBALDI—a year ago or more. Yesterday they made no sign. But while invitations and addresses are coming to the Italian leader from all parts of Great Britain, not one comes from Ireland. Catholic Ireland can have no welcome for the man who makes war on the Papacy, and whose motto is 'Rome or death!' and the Irish Catholic party would rather give a reception to the ex-King of Naples, than to GARIBALDI or VICTOR EMANUEL. What the Emperor of the French may say to his popular invitation to some of his bitterest enemies, we may learn by and-by. Intensely that he really cares very little about it, but that he will make use of the circumstance if it ever happens convenient to do so. Earl CLARENDON has just gone to Paris on a special mission. It is plain, perhaps, that Lord PALMERSTON is very sorry, and hence it will not annoy him.

While the guest of the highest and lowest was taking his dinner, Earl DERBY was making his 'at home' vigorous attacks on Earl RUSSELL. He gave him credit for great industry. He had written one hundred and seventy dispatches on the Danish question. He had been 'spinning, spinning, spinning' his web of diplomacy, to see them swept away as fast as they were spun, without catching a blackfly. Then Earl RUSSELL said, we not up in his geography, or he would know that the Elder did not empty into the Baltic. 'I never said it did,' interrupted old his previous little Lordship. 'You said,' replied DERBY, 'that it was impossible to send a fleet to the Elder, because the Baltic was so liable to be frozen in Winter.' Of course, there was no more to be said about that little matter.

The Conference is down for the 20th. The Germanic Diet will take a vote to-morrow, they will read a representation on the 16th. So nothing is certain about it, and PALMERSTON is saying that France adhered to the treaty of '52, was so wrong as possible. France throws that and all such treaties overboard. If the Duchies, by a popular majority, declare their wish to remain a part of Denmark, France will support them in that wish. France will maintain no other principle than that of the sovereignty of peoples and the rights of nationalities, except where it may be absolutely necessary. But PALMERSTON is always making blunders. It was his declaration that Denmark would not and herself alone, if attacked by Prussia and Austria, that had led to all the suffering of this war. Denmark believed him, because people believe what they wish, and because she thought the Princess was a lot of pledge of England's fidelity. And now poor Denmark is all alone, not even Sweden raising a hand to help her.

MAXIMILIAN has been crowned Emperor. The ceremonial was performed last Sunday, with crowded congratulations, and a 'Te Deum laudamus.' The new Emperor proposed to endorse the next day for Some to receive the Papal benediction, which he said in his address was very important to him. Do you know why? Of course, as a bad Catholic accepting the throne of a new Catholic empire, he should secure the blessing of the Holy Father; but the new Emperor and Empress have a special view of it, for they have no children, and Mexico wants not only an Emperor, but a dynasty. It is believed in Europe that the blessing of the Pope has a wonderful efficacy in procuring offspring. The Empress EUGENIE is the devoted friend of Pio Nono, because she believes that it was his blessing which gave an heir to the imperial throne of France. The Empress of Mexico hopes, by the same means, to be made equally happy. The sentiment of the Catholics to which I have alluded has, therefore, to those who understand it, a peculiar significance.

The general interest in the American war revives on this side of the Atlantic. There is some talking about the reported kidnapping of British subjects for the army. The matter came up in the House of Commons a few nights ago, and it was stated that Lord LYONS was attending to it. Meanwhile Federal recruits go forward by regiments. A steamer left the Clyde a day or two ago with 300 emigrants—Shallin, Scotch, Irish and Germans—many of whom declared their intention to enlist as soon as they landed.

The season fairly opens this week with the delightful weather. Both opera houses are in full clash. On Thursday night GARDINER gave to Covent Garden, to be heard with "Norma," and complimented with two acts of "Massaniello." On Saturday he is to be still more liberal, and give a general entertainment of whatever at the Crystal Palace, crowned with a concert. On the 2d, the great Tercentenary, we shall have all sorts of Shakespeare celebrations that can turn an honest penny. But the Stratford Committee has fallen to the ground between two soft stools. First, Mr. FECHTER, the great Linguist, would not play on all, because Mr. FURNESS, and not he, was invited to play Hamlet. Mr. FURNESS accepted the invitation in perfect simplicity, thinking, of course, that he was the man to do the noble Dane; but somebody told him that some of the Committee had charged him with intriguing to get the invitation. This accusation was pointed by the claimant, as agent of the committee, of Rev. Mr. DYLLEY, sometimes called Rev. Mr. Cramphorne, or by the cognomen he one of the firm of Brimstone & Treacle—Mr. SPURGEON being the brimstone. The sensitive Franco-German Bel Demonte no sooner heard of this disagreeable imputation of "trickery and knavery" than he wrote to the worshipful Mayor of Stratford-on-Avon, refusing to play Hamlet at any price, though, as it turns out, he had already expended $1,000 on the preparations. It also seems that this, or something else, has given him a fever, a relapse in the recovery from his accident, so that he could not play Hamlet if he would. So poor SHAKSPERE must put up with what can be got in place of Fechter and Furness. For my part, I think, falling Stratford-on-Avon, I will join Mr. SPURGEON's Tabernacle in a pilgrimage to Stratford-le-Bow.

MONADNOCK.

THE DRAFT IN NEW-JERSEY.—The draft in the State of New-Jersey has been ordered to commence on the 3d of May. The drawings will be by sub-districts, in the following order of districts: First, Second, Third, Fifth, Fourth. After the drawing shall have been completed in the First District, it will be continued in the Second, and so on to the last.

NAVAL OPERATIONS ON RED RIVER.

Admiral FARRAGUT's Official Report.

MISSISSIPPI SQUADRON, FLAG-SHIP CROCKETT, OFF GRAND ECORE, LA., April 14, 1864.

SIR: I had the honor of reporting to you the movements of the squadron as far as Alexandria, and the intentions of Gen. BANKS to move on at once to Shreveport. He deemed the cooperation of the gunboats so essential to success, that I had to run some risks, and made unusual exertions to get them over the falls. The army started on the appointed day, and I pushed up the gunboats to cover them (if there should be need) as fast as they got over the falls. The vessels arrived at Grand Ecore without accident, and had good water, the river apparently about to reach its usual stage at this season.

The Cricket, Eastport, Mound City, Chillicothe, Carondelet, Pittsburg, Ozark, Neosho, Osage, Lexington, Fort Hudson and Louisville were the vessels sent up, and a fleet of forty transports followed above.

Grand Ecore was occupied by our forces without opposition—the works deserted. Lieut.-Commander PENNOCK captured one 32-pounder on the river below Grand Ecore, which he destroyed, making twenty-two guns captured from the enemy since we entered the river. The army had arrived at Natchitoches, near Grand Ecore, when I got up here, and were preparing for an immediate march. As the river was rising very slowly, I would not risk the larger vessels by taking them higher up, but started on the 7th of April for Shreveport with the Cricket, Fort Hudson, Lexington, Osage, Neosho and Chillicothe, with the hope of getting the rest of the vessels along when the usual rise came. Twenty transports were sent along filled with army stores, and with a portion of Gen. A. J. SMITH's Division on board. It was intended that the fleet should reach Springfield Landing on the third day, and then communicate with the army, a portion of which expected to be at Springfield at that time.

I found the difficulties of navigation very great, but we reached the point specified within an hour of the time appointed. At this point we were brought to a stop; the enemy had sunk a very large steamer, the New Falls City, right across the river, her sands resting on each bank, and her hull broken in the middle; portion of her bottom. This was a serious obstruction, but I went to work to remove it. Before I commenced operations, however, a courier came in from Gen. BANKS, bringing the unpleasant and most unexpected news that our army had met with a reverse, and was falling back to Pleasant Hill, some sixty miles in our rear. Orders also came to Gen. KILBY SMITH to return to Grand Ecore with the transports and the troops he had with him. Here we ran end to our expedition for the present, and we unhesitatingly turned back, after having nearly reached the object we were aiming at.

The information we received was of a very unsatisfactory kind, and I know really what a sensible account state of affairs, no letters having been sent by post courier.

It would be very difficult to describe the return passage of the fleet through this narrow and sneaky river. As long as our army could advance triumphantly it was not so bad, but we had every reason to suppose that our return would be interrupted in every way and at every point by the enemy's land forces, and we were not disappointed. They commenced on us from the high banks of a place called Coushatta, and kept up a fire of musketry whenever an opportunity was offered them. By a proper distribution of the gunboats I had no trouble in driving them away, though from the high banks they could fire on our decks almost with impunity. As we proceeded down the river they increased in numbers, and we really made thirty miles a day the usual cross from point to point and be ready to meet us on our arrival below. On the left bank of the river, a man by the name of HARRISON, with 1,000 cavalry and four or five pieces of artillery, was appointed to follow us down and annoy us. It was very fortunate for us that this person and his command were lately severely handled by a gunboat, a few weeks ago, which made them careful about coming within range.

On the evening of the 12th instant we were attacked from the right bank of the river by a detachment of most of quite another character. They were a part of the army which have for three days previous had gained success over our army, and flushed with victory, or under the excitement of liquor, they appeared suddenly upon the right bank, and fearlessly opened fire on the Osage, Lieut.-Commander P. G. SANDERSON (free-class), she being hard aground at the time, with a transport (the Black Hawk) alongside of her towing her off. The rebels opened with 2,000 muskets, and soon drove every one out of the Black Hawk to the safe casemates of the monitor. Lieut. BACON had just come from his vessel (the Lexington) and fortunately was enabled to pull up to her again, keeping close under the bank. While the Osage opened a destructive fire on these poor deluded wretches, who, maddened by liquor and led on by their officers, were vainly attempting to capture an iron vessel, I am told that their beetings and actions baffle description. Force after force seemed to be brought up to the edge of the bank, where they confronted the guns of the iron vessel only to be mowed down by grapeshot and canister. In the mean time Lieut. BACON had reached his vessel, and widening the distance between him and the Osage, he opened a cross-fire on the infuriated rebels, who fought with such desperation and courage against certain destruction that it could only be accounted for in one way. Our opinions were verified on inspection of some of the bodies of the slain, the men actually smelling of Louisiana rum. The affair lasted nearly two hours before the rebels fled. They brought of two pieces of artillery, one of which was quickly knocked over by the Lexington's guns, the other they managed to carry off. The crews of the Lexington finally decided this curious affair of a fight between infantry and gunboats. The rebels were mowed down by her canister, and finally retreated in complete haste as they had come to the attack, leaving the space of a mile covered with dead and wounded, and knapsacks. A dying rebel informed our men that Gen. GREEN had his head blown off, which I do not vouch for as true; if true it is a serious loss to the rebels. Night coming on we had no means of ascertaining the damage done to the rebels. We are troubled no more from the right bank of the river, and a party of five hundred men, who were marching to cut us off, were prevented by change their mind after hearing of the unfortunate termination of the first expedition. That same night I ordered the transports to proceed, having placed the gunboats at a point where the rebels had a battery, so that the transports were passed safely, the rebels not firing a shot. We return to the army that were battling over the falls.

The next morning, the 13th inst., I followed down myself, and found at Dunnels, six miles from Grand Ecore, my fleet, that they had got aground, and would be some time getting through. I proceeded down in this vessel to Grand Ecore, and got Gen. BANKS to send up troops enough to keep the guerrillas away from the river. We were fired on as usual, after we started down, but when I had the troops sent up, the transports came along without any trouble. This has been an expedition where a great deal of labor has been expended, a great deal of individual bravery shown, and on which occasions the Commander-in-Chief is not to find out the metal of which his officers are made, and on future occasions I will entrust the fleet to fellows who will not likely fall in the fight entrusted. To Lieut.-Commander T. O. SELFRIDGE, commanding Osage, and Lieut. Geo. M. BACON, commanding Lexington, I am particularly indebted for the gallant manner in which they defended their vessels, and for their management during the expedition, always anticipating and intelligently carrying out my wishes and orders.

I found the fleet at Grand Ecore somewhat in an unpleasant situation, two of them being above the bar and not likely to get away again this season, unless there is a rise of a foot. I could not provide against this when over a hundred miles up the river. It matters does not change for, now, there will no doubt be a rise of water, but there was one year, and where there was no rise in the Red River, and it may happen again. The rebels are cutting off the supply by diverting different sources of water into other channels, all of which would have been stopped had our army arrived as far as Shreveport. I have done my best (and so have the officers and men under my command) to make this expedition a success through—and I do not know that we have failed in anything we have undertaken. Had we not heard of the retreat of the army, I should have gone on to the end. A wise Providence, which rules and directs all things, has thought proper to stay our progress, and throw impediments in the way, for some good reason. We have nothing left but to try it again, and hold on to this country with all the force we can raise. It is just as valuable to us and important to the cause as any other portion of the Union. Those who have interests here, and are faithful to the Government, have a right to our protection, and when this point of Louisiana is conquered we take Arkansas and all the right bank of the Mississippi, without firing another gun.

There is a class of men who have during this war shown a good deal of bravery and patriotism, and who have seldom met with any notice from those whose duty it is to report such matters. I speak of the pilots on the Western waters. Without any hope of future reward through fame, or in a pecuniary way, then later into the business of piloting the transports through dangers that would make a faint-hearted man quail. Occupying the most exposed position, a fair mark for a sharpshooter, they are continually fired at, and often, alas, without as much as a mention being made of their gallantry. On this expedition they have been much exposed, and have shown great gallantry in managing their vessels while under fire, in this (to them) unknown river. I beg leave to pay this small tribute to their bravery, and must say, as a class, I never knew a braver set of men.

I beg leave to mention favorably Acting Master H. H. GARDNER, commanding this vessel. He has shown great zeal, courage and ability during this expedition, serving his guns rapidly and well, at his post night and day, ready for anything, and assisting materially in getting the transports of dangerous points, mounting one of his two 10-pound howitzers on his upper deck, he was enabled to sweep the bank in all directions, and one or two fires had the desired effect. He was of great service to me throughout the expedition; was slightly wounded, but nothing of consequence, (owing to his exposing himself so much.) I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

DAVID D. PORTER, Rear-Admiral.

Hon. GIDEON WELLES, Secretary of the Navy.

SECRETARY SEWARD IN BALTIMORE.

A Speech at the Maryland State Fair.

From the Baltimore American, April 29.

On last evening, Hon. Wm. H. SEWARD, Secretary of State, accompanied by the Ministers of Russia, France, Prussia, Italy, Belgium, Sweden, Brazil, Peru, Chili and Costa Rica, and several ladies, visited the fair, where a very large number of citizens were in waiting to receive them.

They were received by the Committee of Reception, and introduced to the President of the State Fair, W. J. ALBERT, Esq., under whose escort they made a circuit of the fair. On reaching the New-England Kitchen, they were welcomed in a few brief and eloquent remarks by R. SWINBURN MARSHALL, Esq., to which Mr. SEWARD responded.

In response to the remarks of Mr. MARSHALL, Secretary SEWARD said he was afraid in the usual moments he had seen evinced for the freedom, as well as the equality of all men, that he might be considered as making but a feeble response to the flattering and complimentary remarks addressed to him. But he was an honest man, and never could suppress an infirmity. He would say that there was one thing that he loved more than the freedom of the white man, or the freedom of the black man; one thing more than all else, and that was his country. [Applause.] He did not know whether his views were philosophical or not—people differ on this point—but he was sure he was right.

There is no question now about human freedom. It is a question that has been settled, and whatever may happen, nothing can change that settlement. The principle of the equality of mankind is already on the point of being established, and in establishing the great truth our country has come into peril. Our business now is to serve our country, and in so doing we serve it for the cause of freedom for all the world. How shall we act to secure this precious casket, which contains the germ of human freedom, that is now being attacked by a revolution which commenced in Baltimore in April, 1861? It is to combine all the patriots everywhere in the country against the traitorous efforts that are being made against the Union. He had laid down for himself certain principles for his guidance, and one of them was to give unlimited confidence to the Union men of all the Border States. He had set, since 6 o'clock, in a Legislature of Maryland that was treasonable—[applause]—but he had never uttered a word against any Union man because he did not agree with him in all things, for he might come up to and go ahead of his standard to-morrow. He had no point of difference with any citizen of Maryland as long as he was in favor of the Union. [Applause.] I would like to have them think that Slavery ought to be abolished. [Applause.] But he did not quarrel with him if he did not, because, if he was a loyal man, he would eventually think so. [Applause.]

Mr. SEWARD said that if he had had his way all of the Border States would have been held in the Union, and would now have been members of it. A sufficient force should have been placed in each of them to assist the Union men, and by their action with the secessionists their wrongs we suffered would have been averted. He did not have his way and we had to fight. We are able to fight them all, and would have been able to fight Maryland, too, if she had gone wrong.

Mr. SEWARD spoke at considerable length, and in concluding said it was now shown that Slavery must be abolished or we have peace, and the first legally-called convention of the people to abolish it, was now sitting in Annapolis, the capital of the State of Maryland; and honored as the ancient city was by its past history, it would be ten thousand times more honored as the capital of that State that was first to pronounce the fall of State Right authority against slavery. [Applause.] [illegible]

On the conclusion of his remarks he was greeted with much applause. Three cheers were given, on the proposition of somebody in the room, for "Our Darling Abe Lincoln," and also for the Foreign Ministers, when the company left the Kitchen and visited the Art Gallery, and shortly after retired from the hall.

INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE.

Advice of Hons. J. J. Crittenden to a Young Lawyer.

NO. 41 PARK ROW, NEW-YORK, April 12, 1864.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

While a law student in the office of Messrs. FERGUSON & LONG, of Cincinnati, of which firm the junior partner is now so notorious, in consequence of the introduction of a resolution to expel him from Congress, (and who, by the way, personally, is one of the best of men living,) I had the honor of eliciting from that noble man and distinguished patriot, unhappily now deceased, JOHN J. CRITTENDEN, the following lesson as advice to a young lawyer, which may be of use to the entire profession, and of special service to those who practice the leading vice of the bar—the abuse of witnesses. A recent case of such abuse suggested the idea of publishing this letter. It is also well, perhaps, that the instructions of so great a lawyer should be generally read by the junior members of the bar; and I hope that they will be more strictly followed by others than they have been by him to whom they were individually communicated.

JNO. S. BENSON.

LETTER FROM MR. CRITTENDEN.

FRANKFORT, Dec. 23, 1834.

DEAR SIR: I have received and perused with deep interest your letter of the 15th of the last month. I would have answered it at once but that I was, at the moment about to leave home, and circumstances have postponed my writing till now.

You are pleased to ask my advice as to your course for the future, and I wish it was in my power to suggest something that might be useful to you. But all that I can say is so obvious, that it must have occurred to you, and in saying anything I shall feel as though I was uttering mere common-place things.

You have selected the law for your profession, and I think you have chosen well. Your letter is sufficient evidence that your character and talents are equal to the task, and the difficulties and struggles through which you have passed prove that you possess all the resolution and energy necessary to your future success. But in the profession you have chosen that success is not to be obtained without a price. It requires study, reflection and persevering diligence. Many young men seem to think that when they have been admitted to the bar they may lay aside their books. You, I am sure, will come to no such conclusion, but rather think that your coming to the bar is but the commencement of your more serious study of the law. You then begin for the first time to see the practical application and working of those legal principles and enactments which had before engaged your attention only as theories and abstractions. This practice develops these principles, enlarges your views of them, and fastens them upon your mind. You can read them with more profit and advantage. Then is the time for fruitful study. Read your books habitually and constantly, and reflect on what you read. All that you gain from it will then be your own, and not merely remembered as another's.

Reading and study are the requisites to great success at the Bar.

Though the law must be the principal subject of your studies, you should not confine yourself to that. History, rhetoric, and all that general information which enables a lawyer to grace his cause, to explain his views perspicuously, and to embellish them if he pleases, ought to have their proper share of attention. This seems to be a wide field for labor, and one may be frightened at the prospect. But it may all be accomplished, and easily, by him who will undertake systematically, and with the right spirit, energy and ambition.

Young lawyers at their commencement are not generally much troubled with clients; they ought to arm themselves with patience. Do not be discouraged at this. It is the novitiate of all. You cannot expect to sow and to reap the same day. When you have not clients you will your books, and these will reward you, if attended to.

The profession in which you have engaged is a noble one. Cherish a lofty idea of its dignity and importance, and conform all your conduct to that sentiment. I have often been disgusted with the rudeness of the Bar, and especially toward witnesses. Such conduct gains nothing to the lawyer or his cause, and ought to make an unfavorable impression against both. Firm and resolute he ought to be in his client's cause, but these qualities are not inconsistent with the highest courtesy.

Your diffidence will be no impediment in your way, or at least, it will be soon overcome. So far as I know, it has been felt and acknowledged by all who ever rose to any eminence in the profession. It is but a part of that sensibility which is necessary to every character of any worth. The best way to overcome it is to be well prepared—thoroughly prepared in all your cases. That will give some confidence.

I think a young lawyer could not do better than, for the first years of his practice, to write his speeches at full length. It would give him a facility and edge of writing that would be of great and lasting advantage to him.

I have made this letter greatly longer than I expected or intended. When a man is asked for advice, there is something in it so flattering that he does not know well when to stop. My motive must excuse me; it has been all that a reputation at least to serve one who has conferred on us you have. I have a presentiment of your success almost as strong and indent as are my sincere wishes for it. I do not wish to impose on you the idea that I have read, or studied, or written as I have recommended to you. I recommend it to you because I neglected it, and have been made sensible of that neglect through life. You can profit by and will feel the advantages through life.

With my best and most earnest good wishes for your success and welfare, I remain respectfully, yours, &c.,

J. J. CRITTENDEN.

Emigration—A Suggestion.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Having noticed in several journals lately, your own among the number, a recommendation to manufacturers, farmers and others in want of workmen, to procure them from Europe, I was surprised that in none of the articles, was one very serious objection referred to, viz.: that a contract made in a foreign country is invalid in this.

Manufacturers who are obliged to procure their workmen in Europe, frequently have no return for the passage money they have paid for those people, who often leave them in a day or two after arriving in this country, and the employers have no redress.

If a law could be passed, making valid all contracts entered into and signed before an American Consul, this difficulty would be removed, and we should have plenty of skilled workmen and women in all branches of manufacture.

Mississippi Valley Sanitary Fair.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Many of those desiring to aid this worthy object, addressed in our columns, feel that our great fair, just closed, has been quite a tax on their purse-strings, but they are in possession of various articles purchased here, which they would be willing to donate at some price to be named, as money, in aid of the St. Louis Fair. The committee will gladly receive any such contributions and give the individuals full credit of it in the published list of contributors to be made from time to time. Many articles will again meet with ready sale at the Soldiers' St. Louis Fair, and thus the donor be helping the Sanitary Commission a double amount.

Coal-Dust and Saw-Dust Fuel.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I have often observed among coal-yards a large amount of coal-dust that looked to me as if a most profitable use might be made of it, and an article of economy to housekeepers to burn in grates and stoves properly manufactured. I would, therefore, suggest to some man of ingenuity to take this dust, combine it with sawdust, wet it, and mould it with some adhesive substance, in the shape of bricks, and dried. Thus prepared, it seems to me it would make one of the most beautiful articles of fuel ever burnt, besides the large amount of caloric it would give out, making a most cheerful and delightful fire.

WILLIAM-STREET.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE CENTRAL PARK.

Recent Improvements—Action of the Legislature.

The Park is fast becoming the most attractive feature of our City life. A promenade on Broadway or the Avenue no longer furnishes the needed post-meridian relaxation. The man of business forgets, for a few hours, the excitement of his calling, and lightens his cares by a drive over the smoothly kept roads, or a ride along the bridle-path. The lady of fashion finds a new source of enjoyment while a noble pair of prancing bays whirls her proudly along the crowded drive. The reigning belle of the season completes the conquest begun at the last ball, amidst the opening beauties of the vernal groves, or on the broad terraces of the Mall.

But, the interest and the pleasure which spring from familiar visits to this delightful ornament of the Metropolis do not centre wholly in the wealthy and fashionable portion of our people. The artisan and the laborer, with their little family flocks, the sewing-woman with attenuated face and feeble pace, all find restored health and a cheering solace in the unpolluted breath of the country and in gazing upon the accumulated treasures of art in this enchanting scene.

Visitors from other lands also admit their gratification in viewing the spacious grounds and diversified scenery, taking care always to remind us that we do not compare favorably with the treasures they have left beyond the Atlantic. Hyde Park and the Bois-du-Boulogne, in their judgment, far transcend these newly discovered beauties, and of course we must submit to the criticism with an acid softening down of our self-esteem.

Our country friends, the farmers who raise fine stock, have learned to think of the Park as the market opened to them for the reception of every well-bred and fleet steed their grazing land and training stables can produce.

And still the work goes on; each returning Spring brings out new charms, fresh from the hand of nature, to challenge our admiration, while art assiduously strives for the mastery. Animated nature also enters into the contest. Switzerland and Italy, the Alps and the Apennines, the frozen climes and the tropics have sent their contributions to swell these annum bered graces of the Park.

In short, the mind that cannot find something to admire and study—something to enlarge its sphere of thought, in a ride or a ramble through these fairy grounds, must, indeed, be

"——— fit for stratagem and spoils."

The Legislature has recently shown its appreciation of the value and importance of this municipal domain, in granting power to enlarge its boundaries by a connection with Manhattan Park, and also in adding an entirely new feature, by placing the improvement of the upper portion of the Seventh avenue under the control of the Board of Commissioners.

Judging from the past success of this efficient and disinterested body of citizens, we feel confident that some striking results will follow the action of the Legislature.

Manhattan Park lies contiguous to the Central on the west side, at Eighth-avenue at Eighteenth street, and it will probably be carried to the development of additional collections in natural history, while the contemplated opening of the Seventh-avenue will offer new attractions for ville residences on that spacious entrance to the Park through its northern gates.

These recent modifications of the original plan of the park are due to the taste and enterprise of a number of our public-spirited citizens, living in the neighborhood of the projected improvements, among whom no one has been more active and efficient than Mr. JOHN MCCLAVE, who may well congratulate himself on the success of his persistent efforts to embellish that section of our City.

Open spaces of ornamented grounds have always been regarded among the most attractive reserves of great cities. And that park are the longest a city has passed into a proverb.

The First Napoleon set a noble example to monarchs having the power thus to alleviate the evils inseparable from closely packed populations. It is a grand idea that a republican City has followed in the pathway thus designated. We cannot but think that the coming generations will be grateful to the rulers of our day, who have thus beneficently provided bountiful sources of healthful recreation for the people at large. Posterity will not be apt to count the cost of adding the graces of artistic finish to the natural grandeur of Central Park.

TURF RECORD.

Trotting at the Fashion Course Yesterday.

The purse of $100, heat 3 in 5, to wagons, yesterday, had originally 13 entries, but the result of the last few days reduced the appearances at the score to a trio, it appearing to be a foregone conclusion that from the power Steamwall Jackson had previously shown, and the easy style in which he had dispatched of his competitors, that the race was his own. The advantageous change in the weather had not only a marked beneficial influence on the track, but on the attendance of the visitors, which embraced a strong delegation of the leading sporting-men of New-York and its vicinity, and the owners, trainers and patrons of the trotting-turf. It was presumed by some that the form, speed and bottom which had been previously exhibited by Steamwall Jackson was but an equine ephemera, liable to displacement at any moment. The admirers of the Jersey mare, Lady Collins, had time and again expressed their convictions that she was fully capable, not only of reversing all previous decisions, but of bringing Steamwall down to exceedingly short time; while the friends of Gen. Grant, who came out with such a rush, and so miserably disappointed his backers when the odds of 3 to 1 were laid on him, felt assured that he had overcome his perverseness, and could be brought down through exercise in the interim to a fair and square trot, without breaking up as recklessly as he had previously done.

A few unlimited pools were sold during the morning, and these pretty plainly indicated the feelings of those interested in the result. In the first Steamwall Jackson fetched $25, the mare 67½, and Grant 60. In the second the prices ruled with the same choice, 100, 65, and 60; but prior to the start 94 to 60 was freely laid on Steamwall, and found no takers.

First Heat—There was a succession of vain attempts at scoring, the majority of which were attributable to the nervous irritability of Gen. Grant. At the sixth, they succeeded in getting off—Steamwall having the inside of the track. Taking the turn, the position remained the same, but almost immediately Gen. Grant went of his legs; at the quarter pole Lady Collins went up to Steamwall and tapped him in "forty," but quickly retired leaving Steamwall with a strong lead down the back stretch—to the half and three-quarter, at the lower turn it was quite evident that Steamwall Jackson could distance Mazeppa's competitor, but he was eased up, coming home the easiest of winners, in 2:34½. At the three-quarter pole General Grant got into a good square trot, and managed to save his distance fairly out of the way.

Second Heat—There was no betting of the slightest consequence, Steamwall being booked the winner to the deadest of certainties. There were the same innumerable attempts at scoring, and nearly the same orders to return, owing to the impulsiveness of Grant, who persisted in running instead of trotting in accordance with the regulations. Lady Collins having been distanced in the previous heat, the finishers was narrowed to him and Steamwall Jackson, who appeared perfectly fresh and fit to trot for anything. Almost as soon as the word was given on passing the stand, Grant went of his feet, Steamwall taking a strong lead, increasing it to the half and quarter; he in went up here, but were brought down to their work again; but Steamwall had so strong a lead that the balance of the trot was a mere burlesque, Steamwall coming home the easiest of victors, amid an unlimited amount of badinage quoted at his competitor, in 2:36½.

The Grand-street Arson Case.

REARREST OF MARK TOPLITZ.

MARK TOPLITZ was arrested on the 15th of February last, by order of Capt. SYRESS, of the Thirteenth Precinct, on the charge of setting fire to a hat and cap store situated at No. 295½ Grand-street, owned at the time by the accused. Fire Marshal BAKER made an examination of the case, and on the strength of the testimony adduced, Justice MANSFIELD held him to bail in the sum of $5,000, to answer the charge of arson. The papers were transmitted to the District-Attorney, and the counsel for the accused took the case before Recorder HOFFMAN, when, on the affidavits presented, discharged the prisoner. It appears that there was other testimony that did not come before the Recorder, and yesterday the latter official issued a warrant for the rearrest of TOPLITZ. Officer TIMPSON, of the Thirteenth Precinct, took him into custody, and he was again held to bail in $5,000 to answer.

The New Tax Bill.

The Annual Income Tax, under the Revenue laws of the United States, will be due on the first Monday in May. The rate of taxation will be, according to the amended Tax Law, five per cent on all incomes in excess of six hundred dollars, except such parts of incomes as may be received from United States securities, which will be taxed at the rate of two and a half of one per cent.

The income tax is required to be paid, in all cases, in the district where the party resides.

The blanks necessary to be filled in can be procured at the office of the assessors of the various districts, or from the assistant assessors.

It is understood that no penalty will be imposed on returns of incomes presented within ten days from the first Monday in May; after which time delinquents will be subjected to the penalty prescribed by law.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL NO. 32.—A few days ago an exhibition was given in the Academy of Music by the pupils attached to the Public Schools of the Twentieth Ward. Contrary, in accordance with general desire, some of the performances participated in by the above-mentioned school were repeated, for the gratification of parents and others interested. It was certainly a great success. Some of the tableaux were beautiful exceedingly. To the very worthy Principal, Miss CARRIE M. EMMONS, assisted by Miss POUNSOT and Miss MABOU, is due the credit of having contributed to the pleasure and gratification of those who witnessed them.

THE TWELFTH-STREET SHOOTING AFFRAY.—Officer Samuel FRASER, of the Eleventh Precinct, who shot JAMES FARRY a few nights since while in the discharge of his duty at the corner of Avenue C and Twelfth street, has been taken into custody, and yesterday he was held to bail by Justice MANSFIELD, of the Essex Market Police Court, in the sum of $2,000, to answer. Bail was also required of the officer to the extent of $500, to answer the charge of assault and battery on PATRICK HEALY, the person whom he was attempting to arrest at the time he was interfered with by the crowd.

THEFT OF $1,800.—WM. WOODS was arrested yesterday, charged with having stolen three trunks containing articles valued at $1,800 from the steamer Columbia, belonging to JOHN BYLAND, recently arrived from England. The accused was taken before Justice MANSFIELD and committed for trial. A portion of the goods were recovered.

SANITARY COMMISSION CONCERT.—A concert in aid of the Sanitary Commission will be given by Mrs. SPEURMAND and her pupils, at Dodworth's Hall, on Thursday evening next, May 5. Many talented young ladies will appear on this occasion, and among them a Miss HARRISON, who has a very remarkable contralto voice, and who is studying for the operatic stage.

THE MARY POWELL.—The steamer Mary Powell has resumed her trips for the Summer, between this City, Rondout and intermediate landings. Her time table is advertised in another column.

Naval Movements.

PROGRESS OF LOCAL MEN OF WAR.

A visit to the naval ship-yards in the Metropolis, reveals the fact that unusual activity prevails in the constructing of war steamers for the Government. The following vessels are now building here, some of them having been only commenced:

Name.	Class.	Where Building.
Dunderberg	Iron-clad ram	Mr. Webb.
Cohoes	Light draught iron-clad	Greenpoint.
Modoc	Light draught iron-clad	Greenpoint.
Passaic	Iron-clad	Greenpoint.
Muscota	Iron steamer	Greenpoint.
Idaho	Great screw-frigate	Greenpoint.
Mahaska	Great screw-frigate	Navy-yard.
Kanawha	Great iron-clad	Navy-yard.
Kalamazoo	Light draught iron-clad	Navy-yard.
Dictator	Ocean iron-clad	Williamsburg.
Mohongo	Iron steamer	New-York.
Mahopac	Iron-clad	Jersey City.
Mahopac	Iron-clad	Jersey City.

All these vessels are on the stocks save the Dictator. The Dunderberg is making more rapid progress now than for months. A portion of the armor is on the hull, and it is expected will be ready for launching in a short time. At Greenpoint, the ocean ironclad Passaic, is going on slowly, and there is no knowing when she will be put [illegible] to be responsible or embarrass her motion.

Liability of Ferry-Boat—That the duty was cast on the ferry-boat to paddle out of the pilot-boat.

That the claimants have failed to make satisfactory proof of any wrongful or mistaken act on the part of the pilot-boat causing the accident, and the ferry-boat is accordingly responsible for the consequences.

Decree for libelants, with a reference to compute damages.

For libelants, H. & W. Q. Morton; for claimants, J. F. Williams.

Sentence of a Counterfeiter.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.

Before Judge Hall.

The United States vs. William T. Poynton.—The prisoner in this case pleaded guilty to an indictment against him for passing an altered Treasury note. He was brought up for sentence some days since, but made an application to the Court to suspend sentence, that an application might be made to the President for leave to enter the navy, and on this application he furnished affidavits of good character. The matter then stood over till this morning, when the District Attorney desired to be heard to contradict the statements affidavit. Instead, however, of furnishing affidavits in opposition, he proposed to put his witnesses on the stand before the Judge, which was done by the consent of all parties. Witnesses accordingly were called, one of whom was formerly the wife of the notorious Billy Mulligan, who testified that she had been living with Poynton here in this City and in Washington in houses of ill-fame, and that he had, though having a wife living here, been guilty of vari[illegible] Mr. Poynton was put on the stand himself, but did not deny the main facts stated against him, though he tried to excuse them in some measure.

The evidence being closed, Poynton's counsel said they should like to have some intimation from the Judge as to the effect of such testimony from such witnesses.

Judge Hall said that the accused did not deny the main facts, and there could be no doubt that if these facts had been known to the public he could not have been considered a person of good character, at least in the section of country where he lived.

The counsel then addressed the court in behalf of his client, who had been led astray, he said, but no [illegible] of dishonesty had been proved against him; the offence was his first offence, for which he had already been in prison for the [illegible] months.

Judge HALL then proceeded to sentence the prisoner substantially as follows:

You have been convicted on your own confession of passing a counterfeit Treasury note. An application was made to me to suspend judgment in order that you might be allowed by the President to enter the navy, and this application was made on behalf of good character. Subsequent events have shown that neither the District-Attorney nor the court should join in any such representations; and the court must proceed to pass sentence. The statute leaves the court a large discretion as to the amount of punishment which it may determine upon. You are a young man of intelligence, and must have understood the danger that you were incurring when you entered upon this career of crime. You must have been aware that the safety of the public requires that these offenders must be punished with severity enough to prevent others from committing the crime.

The court is not inclined to sentence you to a very long term, but to one long enough to show you and all others that the courts of the United States will punish severely all engaged in such crimes. The term will be long enough to afford you ample time for reflection and to convince you, I trust, that honesty is the best policy, even in a worldly point of view—and the court trusts that you will feel the evil consequences of crime and of immorality such as you have been guilty of, and that after your term of punishment shall expire you may be honest and sober and endeavor to obtain a good reputation.

The sentence of the court is that you pay a fine of $1 and be imprisoned at hard labor for the term of two years.

The prisoner's wife, who was present, was a good deal affected, but she seemed himself to be unmoved.

Trade-Marks—The Injunction Against Hendrik's Ambolino Dissolved.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Ingraham.

Henry H. Sterling vs. Edward Kendall and Robert Fellow.—This was a motion to dissolve an injunction in the above case. Dr. Sterling, the proprietor of an article to promote the growth of the hair on bald heads, obtained an injunction against the proprietors of another article of the same nature, called Kendall's Ambolino. The matter in controversy is simply the right to use the portrait of a long-haired lady as a trade-mark. On the part of the defendants making the motion, it was shown that Sterling's hair never grew to such a preternatural length, and an affidavit was read from a postmaster in the land of Canada, who swore that he and known the lady in question in former times; that her hair had always been peculiarly long, but it was the natural growth of her head, and not produced by the use of any lotion; that Kendall had an equal right to use her portrait for his "Ambolino;" that it was common practice to use such pictures; all charges of fraud against Mr. Kendall were withdrawn, and the question turned upon the similitude of the trade-marks. On the part of Dr. Sterling affidavits were produced, from both Mrs. Brown and her husband, showing that her hair had been short and thin, but that in 1856, she had been presented by her brother with some of Sterling's "Ambrosia, which had caused her hair to grow to a great length, that after this she had been on exhibition at Barnum's Museum as a curiosity, and that her portrait was used as the disputed trade-mark. The court said that to maintain the injunction the case must be a clear one; that it would cease to be a trial case on the merits, and that, therefore, the injunction must be dissolved.

D. W. Davies, Esq., for the plaintiff; D. M. Porter, for defendant.

Liability of Innkeepers—Notice to Limit Responsibility.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice Ingraham.

Merrill vs. Hendrickson.—This was an action to recover $300 which was stolen from plaintiff at Coney Island, last Summer. Plaintiff, a resident of this City, while on a visit to Coney Island, stopped at the inn of the defendant, known as the "Pavilion." While there he determined to take a sea bath and with this view hired from the defendant the privilege of depositing his clothes in one of the bathing-houses which the defendant maintained in connection with his hotel. On leaving the water, plaintiff found the bathing-house unlocked, and his pocket-book, containing $300, missing. The defendant denied these allegations, and averred that he had posted notices to the effect that he would not be responsible for money left in the bathing-houses, which notices had been posted in his hotel. The defendant moved to remove this case from the Superior to the Supreme Court, and to change the place of trial to Queens County, he swore to six material witnesses in Hempstead. The plaintiff swore to six material witnesses in New-York. The motion was denied.

Walton, Sherman and Redfield for plaintiff; Rushmore and Weddick for defendant.

Will Admitted.

The Fourth National Bank—Note from Mr. George Opdyke.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

My attention has been called to a malicious attack on me, in connection with the Fourth National Bank, in the financial columns of your paper of 28th inst. I cannot stoop to discuss statements so false and scurrilous. A sufficient refutation of them will be found in the following resolutions, unanimously adopted by the shareholders of that bank at a meeting held on Thursday last:

Resolved, That the shareholders express their entire satisfaction with the present condition of the institution; and, further,

Resolved, That the thanks of the shareholders are due and are hereby tendered to their late President, GEORGE OPDYKE, Esq., and to the retiring Board of Directors for the ability, integrity and financial prudence with which they have managed its affairs.

These resolutions furnish an ample vindication of my conduct as President of that bank. But inasmuch as the misrepresentations of your financial editor are calculated to mislead the public mind, both as to the nature and the issue of the controversy between some of the directors and myself, it is proper I should here present a brief statement of the facts.

The majority of the directors, for reasons best known to themselves, combined to perpetrate a flagrant wrong on the shareholders and myself by forcing me from the Presidency of the bank, without any valid cause and almost without an assigned pretext. This I could not permit without the sanction of the stockholders, three-fourths of whom had subscribed after my name had been publicly announced as the intended President, especially as I feared it was the purpose of some of them to use the bank for their personal ends, rather than for the benefit of its proprietors and of the public. The stockholders were accordingly called together and listened to the statements of both sides. They at once and with almost perfect unanimity accepted the proposition which I had previously made to the board and renewed to them, that all the directors should resign, and thus permit the constituent body to select a new board. The request was made, but the members constituting the majority of the board, foreseeing that this would result in the reelection of Mr. TAYLOR, Mr. LAWRENCE and myself, but not of either of them, peremptorily refused to resign, unless every member of the board should pledge himself not to accept a reelection during the present year.

The stockholders owning and representing a clear majority of the stock represented at the meeting had, contrary to my wishes, expressed to me their desire and their determination to reelect Mr. TAYLOR, Mr. LAWRENCE and myself, if the opportunity should be afforded them. The mere holders have no power under the law of removing the directors before January next; and as the majority put them at defiance, declaring their determination to hold on to their places, and thus force the bank into the courts, unless their demands should be complied with, I at once urged the leading stockholders to permit the minority to make the pledge demanded by the majority. With great reluctance they finally assented, and the meeting subsequently proceeded to select a new board of excellent men, most of whom are my personal friends.

Such has been the issue of this unpleasant controversy. It is in every respect what as I recommended and desired; and but for the refusal of the majority to resign unconditionally, it would have resulted in the reelection, by an overwhelming vote of the shareholders of the minority, including myself. From assurances given me I know this to be the fact, and my opponents knew it also when they insisted, as a condition of their resigning, that myself and my friends in the board should pledge themselves in advance not to accept a reelection. I did not, however, desire a reelection, although it would have been, perhaps, a deserved rebuke for such conduct as theirs. If they, or those who in their interest, write articles abusive of me can extract any consolation from the row, they are welcome to it.

GEORGE OPDYKE.

There is a split in the Public Board of operators on the Stock Market. About 90 or 100 of the more responsible members of the Board Room, at the corner of William and Beaver streets, have withdrawn for a regular and responsible organization, on the payment of $500 by each member, and with rules and responsibilities not unlike the New-York Exchange Board. Before making this diversion this party united, yesterday, with the other attendants in the Room, in dividing the funds in the common treasury between their Chairman and Roll Keeper, about $800 to the former and $620 to the latter. The new organization will go into Broad-street on Monday next, May 2.

The following is a statement of the Earnings of the Prairie du Chien Road for the week ending April 23:

GENERAL MARKETS.

NEW-YORK, Friday, April 29, 1864—6 P. M.

The receipts of the principal kinds of Produce since our last have been 79 bbls. Ashes; 10,003 bbls. Flour, 50 bbls. and 285 bags Corn Meal, 235 bushels Wheat, 6,002 bushels Barley, 165 bushels Oats, 1,500 pkgs. Provisions, and 1,037 bbls. Whisky.

ASHES—Have been inactive at $9 for Pots and $11 for Pearls ₩ 100 lbs.

CHEMICALS—Have been in more demand at better prices.

COFFEE—Is in moderate demand and held much higher. We quote Java at 51c.@53c.; Laguayra and Maracaibo at 44c.@46c.; Rio at 44c.@46c.; Jamaica at 43c.@45c.; St. Domingo at 39c.@40c. ₩ lb.

COTTON—Is quiet and depressed. Strict Middlings at 82½c.@83c. ₩ lb. Sales and resales since our last, 1,000 bales.

FLOUR AND MEAL—The market has been very dull to-day for State and Western Flour, prices of which have declined again 10c.@15c. ₩ bbl. The home and export inquiry has been extremely limited. At the close, the tendency was decidedly in favor of buyers. The receipts were fair and on the increase. Fresh supplies, known as being on the way from the interior, are much needed here, as the stock remaining in market after the Winter trade is quite light, and the assortment of desirable brands much restricted. Sales since our last, 9,400 bbls., including Superfine, State and Western at $7 10@$7 40; poor to choice Extra State $7 40@$7 65, chiefly at $7 50@$7 60; round hoop extra Ohio, shipping brands, at $7 60@$8 10, chiefly at $7 90@$8 ₩ bbl.

Superfine and Western	$7 10	@$7 40
Extra State	7 40	@ 7 65
Extra Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, &c.	7 60	@ 7 80
Extra Ohio, round hoop, ship brands	7 60	@ 8 10
Extra Ohio, trade and family brands	8 15	@ 8 75
Extra Genesee	7 90	@ 9 75
Poor to very choice extra Missouri	8 00	@15 00

Southern Flour continues heavy and drooping, sales since our last, 1,300 bbls., at $7 75@$8 20 for poor to good; $8 20@$11 25 for fancy to choice extra brands, ₩ bbl. Canadian Flour continues depressed; sales 350 bbls. extra, at $7 50@$9 ₩ bbl. Rye Flour is quiet, at $5 25@$5 65 ₩ bbl. Corn Meal continues in good demand, at $4 15@$4 25 for Jersey, and $4 40@$4 50 for Brandywine, ₩ bbl. Total sales 550 bbls. Also, 50 puncheons Brandywine, at $60 each.

GRAIN—Wheat has been neglected and prices, though quoted 2c.@3c. ₩ bushel lower, have been altogether nominal. The available supply of desirable lots is quite limited. Sales have been reported of 6,000 bushels, including White Western at $2; Amber Western at $1 97; Red Western at $1 85@$1 93; Amber Iowa, Wisconsin and Green Bay, at $1 75@$1 78; Milwaukee Club at $1 72@$1 75; Chicago Spring at $1 70@$1 73; and Amber Jersey at $1 70@$1 80, ₩ bushel. Corn is in slack demand and on the decline. Sales have been reported since our last of 20,000 bushels, at $1 30@$1 30½, closing at $1 30 for Mixed Western, $1 33 for unmixed do.; $1 32@$1 30 for New Yellow Jersey and Southern, ₩ bushel. Rye continues very scarce and quiet, at $1 55@$1 58 ₩ bushel. Oats are less active and cheaper. We quote Canada at 65c.@66½c.; Western at 66c.@67½c.; State at 66c.@67½c., ₩ bushel. Barley is dull at $1 35@$1 55, as extremes, ₩ bushel. Barley Malt, $1 55@$1 60 ₩ bushel.

HAY—North River Bale is in fair demand, partly for Government use, at $1 45@$1 50 ₩ 100 lbs.

HOPS—Are salable and steady, at 18c.@20c. for poor to choice, ₩ lb.

HEMP—Manila has been in more request, and has advanced to 17c. ₩ lb., holders now asking even higher prices. Other kinds are quiet.

LATHS—Eastern are less active, yet quoted steady.

LUMBER—Is in fair request, and firm in price.

MOLASSES—The demand is moderate, at uniform prices. Cuba Muscovado, 65c.@70c. ₩ gallon.

NAVAL STORES—Are inactive, including Spirits of Turpentine at $2 20@$2 25 ₩ gallon; Tar, $20@$22 50 ₩ bbl.; Resin, $32@$42 ₩ 280 lbs.

OILS—The market is quiet to-day for most kinds. We quote Crude Whale at $1 12@$1 12; Crude Sperm at $1 65@$1 68; Bleached Winter Whale at $1 22@$1 25; Unbleached Sperm at $1 85@$1 90; Linseed at $1 52½@$1 55½; No. 1 Lard at $1 15@$1 20; Crude Petroleum at 37c.@38c., here; Refined Petroleum at 56c.@60c., free, and 55c.@57c., in bond, ₩ gallon.

PROVISIONS—Pork has been in more request, and quoted firmer. The receipts have been recently light, and the stock has been reduced. Government is taking off large quantities for army and navy use. Sales since our last, 6,900 bbls. at $27 50@$27 75 for New Mess, and $22 25 for May and June delivery; $25 75@$26 for Old Mess; $25 50@$27 for Western and City Prime Mess, and about $27 for do. May delivery; $26 75@$27 25 for Thin Mess, and [illegible] ₩ bbl. Cut Meats [illegible] for Hams, and [illegible] for Shoulders, ₩ lb.; sales 475 packages. Bacon continues in moderate request at 19½c.@[illegible]c., according to quality, ₩ lb.; sales place over 1,000 boxes. Lard is rather heavy; sales 1,000 tierces, prime, for immediate and future delivery, at 14c.@15c. ₩ lb. Beef continues quiet at former rates; sales and resales, at $10@$20 for Extra Mess, $9@$10 for Plain Mess, $7@$9 for Prime Mess, $27@$29 for India Mess, and $21@$24 ₩ tierce. Butter is in moderate request at 25c.@35c. for poor to very choice State, and 22c.@26c. for Western. Cheese is inquired for at 16c.@16½c. ₩ lb.

RICE—Continues in demand, including East India at $100@$11 ₩ 100 lbs.

SALT—Is in fair demand at uniform prices.

SEED—The principal inquiry has been for Timothy, at from $3@3 25 ₩ bushel. Other kinds are firmly maintained.

SPICES—Are held above the views of buyers, and are less active.

SUGARS—Are in fair demand at former rates. Sales since our last 1,300 hhds. including New Orleans at 17½c.@18½c.; Porto Rico at 17c.@18c.; Cuba at 16c.@16½c.; and 700 boxes Havana at 16½c.@18½c. ₩ lb. Refinery Sugars are inactive at 18½c.@20c. ₩ lb.

TALLOW—Sales since our last, 60,000 lbs., at 13½c.@13¾c.

TEAS—Are attracting rather more attention and are held firmly.

WHISKY—The revival of the proposition before Congress to tax the stock on hand has had a very damaging influence on the market for this article. In the price of which there has been recently some most extraordinary fluctuations. Yesterday, holders were asking for State and Western, at $1 16@$1 20, and buyers offering $1 10@$1 12 ₩ gallon. Transactions were unimportant. It is said that some of the retest speculative purchasers have been urging the imposition of a heavy prospective tax, but finding that Congress is disposed to make the tax law, in this instance, retrospective, or too nearly so to suit their views, they are now muttering complaints about unequal taxations, &c., &c., and appear to be quite eager to realize.

FREIGHTS—For Liverpool, the engagements were confined to 7,000 bushels Wheat at 7½d., 20 tons Beef at 1s. 6d., 200 bbls. Beef at 2s. 6d., 40 bbls. Sperm Oil, at 12s. 6d. ₩ ton; 30,000 Hoopwood staves at 15s. ₩ thousand. For London, 250 tons Oil Cake, at 15s., and 100 bbls. Oil at 20s. For Hull, a Bremen bark, from St. Johns, with Timber, at 30s. For Antwerp, 1,200 bbls. Petroleum at 5s. 6d., and 35 tons Heavy goods at 22s. 6d.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

Gen. GRANT, it seems, has not yet fully completed his preparations for commencing operations, and our Washington telegrams report that it may be some days before the campaign is opened. A reconnoissance by a cavalry force under Gen. DAVIES to Madison Court-house demonstrates the fact that the rumors regarding a rebel force having crossed the Rapidan were untrue. Gen. BURNSIDE is said to have visited Gen. GRANT at his headquarters yesterday, and the rebels are at liberty to draw their own inferences from a knowledge of the fact. The statement that a large rebel force was concentrating at Front Royal is contradicted upon competent authority. The only force in that vicinity is EARLY's Division, of EWELL's Corps, the strength of which, with the scattered detachments of guerrilla cavalry under MOSBY and other partisan leaders, does not exceed six thousand men. It is significantly hinted that Gen. AVERELL may soon commence investigations into the condition of affairs in the quarter referred to. A rumor which had gained currency in Washington reaches this City, only to be contradicted—it is that Gen. HOOKER had arrived at Harper's Ferry from Chattanooga.

We have a statement from Newbern that the rebel ram Albemarle was injured somewhat in the recent fight at Plymouth, but that as soon as it is repaired it will, in company with its consort on the Roanoke River, proceed to attempt to demolish our naval force and fix the vessels in reasserting their authority over the whole of North Carolina.

For some reason which the military officials must explain, Red River affairs look more encouraging when viewed from a New-Orleans standpoint than when they are regarded from Cairo. Yesterday a New-Orleans steamer reported Gen. BANKS' forces as marching on Shreveport again; to-day advices from Grand Ecore to the 23d, via Cairo, represent the rebels as marching on that place. Gen. BANKS' force, it is said, were going out to meet them, and it is added that our forces are "securely intrenched" on both sides the Red River.

A correspondent of the Chicago Journal, writing from Huntsville, Ala., under date of April 20, states that a rebel force of from 5,000 to 10,000, under command of RODDY, has for some days been threatening an attack upon our position at Decatur, Ala. A report via Cairo, under date of the 26th, states that there has been two days' fighting there, but the fact that no confirmatory reports have been received, renders it improbable that anything serious has transpired.

Maj.-Gen. WALLACE, in command of the Middle Department, has issued an order from his headquarters at Baltimore, directing that all real estate, bonds, securities and bank stocks, which are the property of those who have joined the rebel army and gone South to aid the rebels, shall be forthwith turned over to the United States Quartermaster.

The Courrier des Etats Unis states that there is no disagreement between the French and National authorities in regard to the Richmond tobacco question. M. DE MARIGNAULT, who commands the French vessels in the James River, had orders from the French Minister in Washington and from Admiral REYNAUD, to return, with all his vessels, from City Point to Fortress Monroe, on the 23d inst.

Our special Washington dispatches state that Gen. HALLECK has been appointed Chief of the Cavalry Bureau, and that Admiral DAHLGREN has returned to the blockading squadron, off Charleston.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, the Red River disaster came up for discussion, in connection with a joint resolution offered by Mr. HENDERSON, of Missouri, to provide for the printing of the report of the Cotton Speculation Investigating Committee, of which Gen. McDOWELL was President. Some opposition was made to the adoption of the resolution by Messrs. WILSON, FESSENDEN and others, when Mr. HENDERSON stated that letters he had recently read stated that the Red River disaster was attributable to the sending of the wagon train in advance with the cavalry, for the purpose of gathering cotton. Mr. CONKLING denied this insinuation most emphatically, and defended Admiral PORTER from charges casually made against him. The resolution was finally adopted. The National Currency Bill came up in order, and various amendments which were offered were defeated by decisive votes. Of the miscellaneous measures introduced, the most noticeable was a curious scheme to supply the Upper Mississippi with a medium stage of water throughout the Summer months.

The Missouri contested elections were again before the House, and much time was wasted in discussing them and the various aspects of the Blair controversies. When the question relative to calling for the correspondence about Gen. BLAIR's resignation was up, Mr. BROOKS endeavored to introduce an amendment asking for information respecting the fitting up of a bureau in the Treasury Department for printing money, bonds, &c. The amendment was declared out of order, and after a series of ineffectual efforts to compel the House to listen to a speech he had prepared upon the subject, Mr. BROOKS abandoned the attempt, and subsequently Mr. GARFIELD offered an independent resolution covering substantially the same ground with that previously submitted. Objections were made to its introduction, however, and the subject was therefore postponed. Mr. SUMNER reported the Senate bill to increase the pay of soldiers, and gave notice that he would call it up at an early day. During the evening session. There were some speeches made, but no business was transacted.

GENERAL NEWS.

Com. S. C. ROWAN, of the South Atlantic Blockading Squadron, has forwarded to the Navy Department a communication from Capt. J. DE CAMP, written on board the United States steamer Wabash, off Charleston, S. C., under date of April 19, in which that officer relates the supposed sinking of the rebel torpedo boat which sunk the Housatonic. It appears that on the night of the 16th the deck officer of the Wabash discovered a dark object about 150 yards distant from that vessel, which corresponded in shape and movements to the torpedo boat. It moved rapidly up against the tide, till opposite the mainmast, and then turned and stood directly for the ship. The men of the Wabash quickly rushed to their quarters upon the beat of the gong, and when the supposed torpedo boat was about fifty yards distant round shot were fired at her from each of the spar-deck guns. A round shot is supposed to have struck and sunk her, as she was seen no more after the first fire, and the second volley struck in the immediate vicinity of the first.

A dispatch from Memphis anticipates the probable verdict of the Congressional Committee appointed to investigate the Fort Pillow disaster, so far as to express the opinion that Gen. HURLBUT will be acquitted of blame, inasmuch as he had not sufficient force to deal vigorously with the rebels. The committee in question was at Cairo on the 28th, on route to Washington.

A dispatch to the Springfield Republican, says it is known to Secretary CHASE's intimate friends that he is thinking seriously of withdrawing from the Cabinet within a few weeks, or as soon as Congress shall have satisfactorily perfected its legislation on financial subjects.

Judge SHIPMAN, of the United States Circuit Court at New-Haven, has decided that merchant tailors are manufacturers, and that they must pay taxes as such.

CHARLES L. HUNT, a native-born American citizen, has been unpatriotic enough to claim exemption from the draft in St. Louis, on the ground that he is the Belgian Consul in that city. The Enrollment Board rejected his plea and sent the papers to Washington.

W. T. FOTHERGILL, yesterday, in the United States Circuit Court, pleaded guilty to an indictment against him for passing an altered Treasury note, and was sentenced to pay a fine of one dollar and to be imprisoned at hard labor two years.

Gold was 2 ⅞ cent. lower yesterday. Money market easy. Stocks steady in price, but speculation in the railways dull. A very large amount of Customs was paid into the Treasury in anticipation of the new tariff resolution of Congress.

Breadstuffs were dull and heavy yesterday, at reduced prices. Provisions were in more demand; Pork was dearer. A fair business was transacted in Hay, Metals, Salt, Sugars, Molasses, Wool, and Tobacco, at buoyant rates. Cotton was quiet and depressed. Whisky was dull and much lower. Domestic Cottons and Staple Dry Goods were in fair request, the latter chiefly for the country trade, and prices favored sellers, with light stocks available; but in other respects, the market was rather inactive and unsettled, in view of the tariff measures before Congress, and the impending offensive movement of the National Armies. The freight engagements were light.

The Movement to Postpone the Convention—The Last Expedient.

We have before us a new and supplementary circular-petition to the National Executive Committee for a postponement of the Union National Convention. It is dated on Wednesday last, a month later than the other, but adds nothing thereto of any account, save the statement that "as far as we learn, the desire is quite general that the Convention shall be postponed." The design of this, of course, is to impress the idea that public opinion demands the change. If the committee could be convinced of this they should, and no doubt would, comply, whatever their own personal judgment might be in the matter. But there is not the slightest evidence that there is any such "general desire" as these signers represent to exist. It looks very much as if the movers in this business were painfully uneasy under the exposed fallacy of their first reasons, and had put in this supplementary plea, at this eleventh hour, as simply a desperate expedient.

Certainly, no such "general desire" has been expressed in any of the ordinary modes of manifesting opinion. Not one State Convention, or any other public assemblage of Union men, great or small, nor any political committee, regularly appointed, in any part of the country, so far as we have learned, has called for a postponement. Nor has a change been advocated by any considerable number of the Union presses.

The Union State Convention of the great State of Pennsylvania, which met on Thursday last, we believe, was a fair exponent of the loyal feeling of the country. Not a syllable was uttered in that convention, from its commencement to its close, in favor of postponing the Presidential nomination. Had such a desire been entertained by any portion of the convention, it would, beyond all doubt, have found expression in some manner; for the sole business of the convention was to appoint delegates to Baltimore, and to give utterance to the popular feeling in relation to their duties. There was not only an utter absence of intimation from every quarter that a postponement was desirable, but there was an unhesitating committal at the very outset to the expediency, or rather the moral necessity, of renominating President LINCOLN. By resolution unanimously adopted, the delegates were instructed to "vote as a unit for ABRAHAM LINCOLN, and to adhere to him as long as his name is before the convention." Every speaker before the convention, and before the mass meeting in the evening, without a single exception, maintained emphatically that it would be in the highest degree injurious to make a change in the Executive at this period of the war, and gave the heartiest approval of the war policy of the Administration. It is absurd to pretend in the very face of such a demonstration as this, that there is a "general desire" that the nomination should be postponed until September. If there be such a desire, there is no reason in the world why Pennsylvania should not participate in it, or at least some portion of the loyal people, whose voice would have been heard in that body, even if it did not control it. The spirit of the loyal body of the people is essentially the same through the whole breadth of the land, and it is not possible that there should be serious discontent in one region without some manifestation, in greater or less degree, of a similar feeling in all other regions.

This assumption by the signers of this circular that public opinion seconds their movement, is too palpably unwarrantable to have the slightest effect upon the action of the National Executive Committee. It is a device quite unworthy of the respectable names attached to the document. Their preferences for some other candidate than Mr. LINCOLN are honest, and merit fair consideration when fairly urged. But the use of such arguments as appeared in their first circular, and of such a representation as this second one embodies, cannot advance their object. Without sounder reasons and clearer facts, their effort will prove a dead failure.

The Influence of Russia.

A striking instance has been presented lately of the increasingly bitter feeling prevailing in Russian official circles toward France. The 31st of March was the fiftieth anniversary of the taking of Paris by the allies. An order was issued by the Government, ordering its celebration with especial brilliancy. A grand review of the Russian regiments in St. Petersburgh was to be held, and they were particularly commanded to appear, not with their new banners, but with the old flags which had been tattered and soiled in their long struggle with the French.

The official organ does not attempt to soften the meaning of these celebrations, but recalls to the younger Russians the memory of the heroic days when "Russia expelled one army and twenty peoples from her soil, and over the ruins of her burning villages, appeared on the Niemen, to bring back peace and order to Europe." It is intimated that Russia has still the power to serve civilization again, in a similar manner, if the necessity arises.

Such a grand national celebration, and such words at this time from a semi-official source, can have but one interpretation. The French journals do not hesitate to draw it. They see that Russia is girding herself for the great struggle which is being threatened again, between the Powers of Western and Eastern Europe.

Since the illustrious 31st of March, 1814, when Russia stood in military power and the glory of great services in behalf of civilization at the head of Europe, she has passed through many phases in her influence over the other European States. When the French wars closed, she presented herself to the world as a vast semi-barbaric Power, the great enemy of popular liberty, and the cloud on the borders of European civilization. The alternative in the future of Europe was supposed to be Democracy or a Cossack tyranny. Her military power was considered almost irresistible, and the nation which had ruined the great NAPOLEON and had sent forth its wild troops even to the Seine, was supposed to hold in its hands the destiny of most of Europe. The influence of Russia in the adjustment of Europe after 1815, confirmed this dread of her absolutism, and her bloody share in the oppression of Poland, and the crushing hand she laid upon Hungary, justified all the popular fears of her future power in Europe as exerted against liberty and progress.

The first rude shock given to the general estimate of her military power was caused by the Crimean War. And, though in that struggle, England and France had not much of the fruits of victory to show, yet they succeeded in thoroughly checking the military influence of the Cossack Empire over the world, and in revealing its essential imperfection and weakness. From that war Russia came forth shorn of her military prestige, which she can probably never regain. But, taught by calamities, and feeling the spirit of the age, the Empire has since then commenced a career of social and political progress which will eventually give her immense moral weight in the world, and, in fact, render her, even in a military point of view, stronger, at least for defence, than ever before.

Russia is now the leader in social advancement in Eastern Europe. She is stronger in the true union of all classes than ever before. Her population, as they each day enjoy the freer institutions conferred upon them, and become more intelligent under the influence of a constitutional government, will produce more and become richer. The Emperor is more firmly seated by these wise reforms than he has been in the past. Year after year he must be moved on by the great wave of popular progress which he has admitted within the limits of his kingdom. He cannot withdraw (if he would) from reform. The great wound in the side of the nation—their weakest point, Poland—is more than half cured by the measures of emancipation now inaugurated there. On the whole, we look upon Russia at this time as stronger than she has been during any year since 1815. But her strength is on the side of civilization, not against it; and even these irritating and exciting celebrations, we believe, will lead to no necessary struggle between her power and that of Eastern Europe.

"GOOD GRACIOUS, MAX.!"—It is stated in a foreign paper that the Archduke MAXIMILIAN is endeavoring to have a Spanish Prince named his heir presumptive to the Mexican throne, in case he should die without children! This is cool, and considerably "presumptive" per se. We do not know what MAX's chances of dying without children may be, but if they are a tenth part as great as his chance of dying without a throne in Mexico, his progeny certainly does not promise to be very numerous. He had better make sure of his sceptre before troubling himself about somebody to wield it after he gets through. He may be a great man, but he would do well to study the admirable instructions of Mrs. GLASS about cooking fish. The first thing to be done, in his case as in hers, is to catch the fish. In the troubled waters where he proposes to angle, he may find this a matter of some little difficulty. It certainly is not worth his while just yet to trouble his head about a "presumptive heir."

SMALL SQUABBLES IN CONGRESS.—Congress and sundry of our public men, seem to be growing sensitive to the abuse of eminent public men by public officers. Gen. FRANK BLAIR made, lately, a very vituperative speech against Secretary CHASE, in very bad taste, unjust, and utterly unjustifiable in every respect; and it happened soon afterward that the President returned him his commission as Major-General, and ordered him into the field to fight rebels instead of staying at home to fight loyal men. For this, Congress seems inclined to call the President to account, as if he had committed some great wrong against the Secretary of the Treasury. This sensitiveness to the proprieties of official life is encouraging, though it comes somewhat late. For months past persons, holding conspicuous official positions, have made it their business to abuse the President without stint, but they have neither been dismissed nor denounced in Congress therefor. Is it treason to assail a Secretary, and no offence at all to attack the President—or are we really to have a new order of things in this respect?

Nothing, in our judgment, could have been worse than Gen. BLAIR's speech, unless it is the fuss Congress seems inclined to make over it. If that body could forget its personal resentments and paltry ambitions a little while, and devote its attention to the public good, it would very greatly enhance its claims to the public gratitude.

PORTER'S REPORT.—Admiral PORTER forwards to the Navy Department a very interesting report of his recent naval operations up the Red River. His fleet was large, consisting of a dozen vessels, several of them iron-clads, and thirty transports; and his orders were to advance as high as Shreveport, and cooperate with Gen. BANKS in his movement upon that point. The defeat of BANKS' army compelled a return of the fleet as far as Grand Ecore. Of his remarkable experiences, and of the remarkable fight between two of his iron-clads and a large force of drunken rebel infantry, he gives a vivid picture.

In the severe criticisms that have been made upon the movement in Western Louisiana, the fact has been generally lost sight of that the capture of Shreveport, had it been effected, would have been a very valuable success. Admiral PORTER says: "When this point of Louisiana is conquered, we hold Arkansas and all the right bank of the Mississippi without firing another gun."

A Curious Proceeding.

It may be remembered that some weeks since we mentioned the arrest in Washington of Maj. F. S. BOND, one of the staff of Gen. ROSECRANS, for being in that city without proper leave,—and that he was ordered to report to Gen. ROSECRANS for trial by court-martial at St. Louis. The St. Louis journals of the 14th bring the report of his trial.

The charge was that he was in Washington without "special leave from the War Department, in violation of orders from the Adjutant-General." Maj. BOND admitted that he was in Washington on the day named, March 25, and that his only authority for being there was an order from Gen. ROSECRANS directing him to proceed thither "without delay, on special service." This admission was regarded as conclusive on the part of the prosecution.

For the defence, Gen. ROSECRANS testified that he ordered Maj. BOND to Washington on the occasion referred to,—that the special service required of him was the delivery of a letter to Lieut.-Gen. GRANT and another to Maj.-Gen. HALLECK, on urgent and important business connected with his department, concerning which he thought verbal explanations might be desired,—and that he had frequently before sent officers to Washington on similar service, in the same manner, without objection from any quarter. The business in question was the reported refusal of the Senate to confirm Col. GARDENIER as his Provost-Marshal-General. Maj. BOND stated that he went to Washington in obedience to the order of his superior officer; that on arriving, March 24, he reported at the office of the Adjutant-General, with his authority for being there and the business on which he had come; that he presented his letter to Gen. HALLECK, and was told that Gen. HALLECK had no orders for him; and that in the afternoon of the same day he was placed under arrest, and ordered to report to Gen. ROSECRANS for trial.

Maj. BOND was at once acquitted and restored to his position. But he very naturally complains of the hardship of being arrested and tried for obeying an order of his superior officer, which he would have been severely punished for refusing to obey.

AMUSEMENTS.

WINTER GARDEN.—Mr. MARETZEK's promised season cannot take place. No fault attaches to the impresario. He always keeps his word with the public, even when a ruinous pecuniary loss is involved. The trouble in this case rests with a few German chorus singers, and is not likely to end until they are weeded out of the company. These persons, although they have had the longest and best engagement under Mr. MARETZEK that they have ever had in this country, refuse to sing at rehearsals unless they are specially paid for the instruction they there receive. A proposition so preposterous cannot, of course, be listened to, and Mr. MARETZEK, smarting under many advances, prefers to close the Academy rather than have terms dictated to him that virtually govern his mode of producing opera. We think he is right. A close monopoly has grown up in the matter of instrumental players and chorus singers that must be fought and killed at some early day. The public will desire no better champion than Mr. MARETZEK, and will readily excuse that gentleman for standing on his rights and at once resisting an imposition that is as insolent as it is illiberal. For ourselves, we regret the contretemps, inasmuch as the indications were favorable to a brilliant Spring season.

IRVING HALL.—Two very meritorious musical entertainments take place here to-day. The first (a matinée, commencing at 4 o'clock) is under the auspices of the famous tenor Signor MARIANI, and is for a benevolent purpose, namely, to relieve the distress in his native place. Among the leading artists who assist on the occasion are Mme. BRIGNOLI ORSALANI, Mlle. SUZANI, Signor BELLINI and Signor MARCHESI, Mr. S. B. MILLS, the celebrated pianist.

BARNUM'S MUSEUM.—The multifarious attractions of this extensively conducted establishment have lately been increased in the dramatic department, by the production of a stage version of Mr. TROWBRIDGE's novel of "Cudjo's Cave." It is no slight task to condense the incidents of such a work, and bring them within the limits of a short performance, such as Mr. BARNUM usually provides for his patrons. Mr. DE WALDEN has succeeded in a measure that must be satisfactory to all who have read the novel, and as this class is a very large one, he has been rewarded with overflowing and attentive audiences ever since the play was produced. He has been assisted, with great success, by the excellent stage management of the Museum—a stage management which puts to shame the pretensions of almost every other establishment in the City. The scenic changes at this house are always effected with cleanness, and with a degree of rapidity that is almost startling. In "Cudjo's Cave" there are several heavy "sets," to say nothing of the illuminated fountain which is sandwiched between the first and second acts, and must take some trouble to arrange; yet there is neither noise while the curtain is down, nor delay in ringing it up. In fact, four acts of a regular melodrama and a series of miscellaneous performances on the stage, are pleasantly and artistically presented in the space of one hour and three-quarters.

"Pomp, of Cudjo's Cave," is a sensation piece, reflecting in a powerful manner some of the incidents of the present war, and drawing, like "Uncle Tom's Cabin," much of its pathos from the oppressions and sufferings of the African race. It abounds in action and situation, and is so interesting that the audience frequently loses its patience with the representatives of the Southern (Confederate) Army, and roundly hisses them. In Paris, during the Crimean war, it was almost impossible to find supernumeraries to play the parts of Russian subjects, so great were the indignities heaped upon them by the audience. The contemporary drama seems likely to suffer from the same cause here. Who would be a Confederate, when, by supporting the Union, he can win the heartiest plaudits of the audience? It is evident that Mr. BARNUM does not count many Secessionists among his patrons.

The piece is played with spirit, and is, in fact, a credit to the company and all concerned in its presentation. Notwithstanding its success, it must be withdrawn after the coming week; so all who would see "Pomp" must take an early opportunity of doing so.

STEREOSCOPICON.—This admirable exhibition will close to-day. No one should neglect to go either this afternoon or evening. The entertainment is both delightful and instructive.

THE HIPPOTHEATRON.—SPALDING & ROGERS' "Great Ocean Circus" Company, whose inaugural performance took place Monday evening last, has received the indorsement from the New-York public of the high encomiums which have been bestowed upon it by the celebrities of the lands it has visited during its three years' ocean tour. The company is exceedingly large and (exceedingly good) and it is questionable if as full and thoroughly an artistic troupe has been seen in New-York. All the departments—equestrian, gymnastic and acrobatic—are represented by leading performers, native and foreign, and where all are good, and all receive the honor of jocularly recalls, it is almost invidious to make selections, but notice can well be made of the riding of Mr. C. W. FISH, the brothers ROLLAND and TOURNAIRE, and the gymnastic evolutions of Mr. DUVERNAY. There will be a matinée for ladies and families, to-morrow, in addition to the regular evening performances.

The Pennsylvania Legislature.

STATEMENTS REGARDING THE PENNSYLVANIA RESERVES.

HARRISBURGH, Friday, April 29.

In the House of Representatives, this evening, Mr. BARGER made an important statement relative to the fifteen regiments of Pennsylvania Reserves. He stated that they entered the service of Pennsylvania in May, three years ago, but were not mustered into the national service until two months afterward. They were now greatly dissatisfied, so much so that many were under arrest; the men claiming that their time of service expired in May, the National Government contending that it extended until July.

Mr. BARGER read extracts of a letter from Col. McCANDLESS, commanding the division, relative to the dissatisfaction, and fearing the men will refuse to serve after May. Gov. CURTIN had urged some action on the part of the Legislature to induce the National Government to comply with the demands of the men in accordance with their supposed rights.

Mr. BARGER offered a resolution urgently soliciting the President to discharge the Reserves. To add to the dissatisfaction of the men it is stated that some of their former comrades who had left and joined the regulars, had already been discharged under orders of the War Department, which allowed soldiers leaving the volunteers and joining the regulars, to count their three years from the date of their original enrollment, and not from the date of actual muster into the national service. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

SIMON CAMERON has been chosen Chairman of the Union State Central Committee.

Obituary.

Mr. JAMES HOLBROOK, who was for seventeen years special agent agent of the Post-office Department, died on Thursday afternoon, at his residence in Brooklyn, Conn. Mr. HOLBROOK attained the position he held at the time of his death entirely through his own exertions. He was in fact a self-made man. Previous to the time he entered the Post-office he was editor of the Norwich Courier. He afterwards published Ten Years among the Mail Bags, and also edited and published the very valuable postal journal The United States Mail. His official duties connected with the Post-office were performed in a very prompt and efficient manner. As a detective he was specially valuable, and aided very materially, both in the detection and prevention of frauds in the department. Most of the important cases of fraud brought to light, he either discovered, or had his attention directed, through his exertions, and in every instance his services have been very valuable.

His funeral took place at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended by his friends and relatives.

CAPT. MEADE RELIEVED.—Capt. MEADE, who has been in command of the receiving ship North Carolina, was on Thursday relieved of the command, which he has had for some three years, and is assigned to take charge of the Naval Rendezvous, at Newport. Yesterday morning the officers and men of the North Carolina were assembled for a leave-taking. By all of them, Capt. MEADE is held in warm esteem. He made an address to them, in which he referred to his pleasant associations while in command, to the success, through their cooperation, of many reforms and improvements and thanking them for the valuable assistance they had rendered him, urged them to be faithful and true to the flag and the country, and render an honorable account of themselves in the future. He concluded by bidding them each and all farewell, and was honored with three hearty cheers, each given with an earnestness testifying the kindly feeling felt for him. Commander TAUSSIG, who has had charge of the Naval Rendezvous, takes command of the North Carolina.

FIRE IN WEST THIRTY-FOURTH STREET.—Soon after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a fire was discovered on the upper floors of the four-story house owned by ROBERT H. GOFF, situated at No. 237 West Thirty-fourth-street. The premises were occupied by Mr. JOHN FRAZER. His furniture is badly damaged by fire and water. The damage to the building is about $3,000. It is insured for $2,000 in the Mechanics' and Traders' Insurance Company. FRAZER is insured on his furniture $1,500 in the Market Insurance Company. The adjoining building, No. 235, owned by Mr. GOFF, was damaged to the extent of $500. It is insured in the Peter Cooper Insurance Company for $6,000. Mr. GOFF's furniture was damaged about $2,000. Fully insured in the Globe Insurance Company.

Arrivals in the City.

Maj.-Gen. Hartauff, U. S. A.; Hon. P. H. Watson, Washington; Gen. J. T. Miller, Seneca Falls; T. M. Eddy, wife and child, Chicago; Judge Low, N. Y.; and Gov. W. M. Stone, Iowa, are at the Metropolitan Hotel.

Senator Rice, Minnesota; Judge Church, Pennsylvania; R. Hilliard, Buffalo; T. Steele, Minnesota; J. H. Wade, Ohio; H. A. Foster, Oswego; Hon. H. A. Nelson, Washington; and Dr. Childs, Saratoga, are at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

Lieut.-Col. T. E. Pierce, U. S. A.; and Capt. Latimer, U. S. N., are at the Astor House.

The Strength of the Rebels in the Shenandoah Valley.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE N. Y. TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 28.

REPORTS FROM THE FRONT.

Officers from the front thought proper to believe that active operations will not be commenced just yet.

The enemy are again busily engaged in throwing up more earthworks and digging rifle pits covering the various fords along the line of the Rapidan. Their pickets have been strengthened along their whole front, and extended further down the river toward our left.

Picket-firing has again been resumed, and small skirmishes take place almost daily on the outposts.

THE REBELS IN THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY.

There is no truth in the report of the concentration of a large rebel force in the Shenandoah Valley, near Front Royal. The only rebel force in the valley is EARLY's division of EWELL's corps, which for troops there outnumber two to one. EARLY's forces augmented by irregular cavalry of BOSSER, WHITE, MOSBY, and GUERRAN, do not, in all, amount to six thousand. PRESCOTT SMITH, of Baltimore, the secretary of whose position leaves full knowledge of the condition of affairs in that vicinity, emphatically confirms these statements. Something important is expected before long from Gen. AVERELL.

BURNSIDE AND GRANT.

RUMORS ABOUT GEN. HOOKER.

Rumors that HOOKER has come on from the West, and is at Harper's Ferry, are utterly unfounded.

THE WAR IN THE SOUTHWEST.

The Red River Expedition—The Rebels Reported Marching on Grand Ecore—Our Forces Going Out to Meet Them.

St. Louis, Friday, April 29.

The correspondent of the St. Louis Democrat, writing from Vicksburgh on the 23d inst., says:

"The steamer Lioy has arrived, bringing news from the Red River that no more fighting had occurred up to the 20th inst.

The rebels were reported marching on Grand Ecore on the 23d inst., and our troops as going out to meet them.

Our total loss in the late battles foot up four thousand.

Our army is believed to be securely entrenched at Grand Ecore, on both sides of the river.

The Investigation into the Fort Pillow Massacre—Miscellaneous.

MEMPHIS, Tuesday, April 26.

The Sub-Committee on the Conduct of the War are here investigating the Fort Pillow massacre. It is thought they will exonerate Gen. HURLBUT, as it is generally admitted the force of his command was inadequate to deal vigorously with FORREST.

CAIRO, Thursday, April 28.

The Memphis papers of the 26th contain nothing of special interest. Cotton had advanced one cent, but there was little doing, holders waiting for better prices; receipts and stocks are light.

A reception was given to the Thirty-first Illinois Veterans at Carbondale yesterday, preparatory to their return to the field, followed by a dinner and ball.

During the afternoon some soldier of the regiment, who had an old grudge against Col. OSBORN, entered a store where the Colonel was sitting, and struck him on the head with a weight, breaking his skull, and inflicting a mortal wound. The murderer had not been arrested at last accounts.

Messrs. WEED and GOODE leave for the East tomorrow morning.

The steamer Forest brought up 400 bales of cotton for St. Louis.

FROM NORTHERN ALABAMA.

A Rebel Force Threatening an Attack at Decatur—Reported Two Days' Fighting.

Special Correspondence Chicago Journal.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Wednesday, April 20, 1864.

We have exciting reports from Decatur. A rebel force, variously estimated at from 5,000 to 10,000, with considerable artillery, has been hovering around there for several days. The Ninth Illinois Cavalry (mounted) first discovered the enemy some miles out from Decatur, on the 14th, while scouting. They have had several skirmishes with the rebels, who have been ascertained to be KNIPE's command of mounted men. On the 17th their pickets were discovered within ten miles of town, on what is known as the Courtland road. The Ninth Illinois has been constantly busy annoying and testing the enemy. That regiment and the First Alabama Cavalry, supported by the Twenty-fifth Wisconsin and Thirty-ninth Ohio, have several times driven in their pickets.

It is expected that KNIPE intends to attack our position at Decatur. Gen. DODGE, who commands our forces there, is prepared to repel him. We have strong fortifications. Trees have been going down there, and if he attempts a regular siege against us, the rebels will find us more than enough for him. The position the enemy now occupies on the Courtland road, surrounded with timber, is considered a good one, and indications are that he designs a flank movement upon us.

Some think this rebel demonstration in our front is merely a ruse to cover some other movement. It may turn out to be so. You may expect before many days to hear of stirring events in this department.

The Chenango Disaster.

THE INVESTIGATION ON THURSDAY.

On Thursday, in the Chenango investigation, Mr. E. W. DICKINSON again took the witness stand and occupied the entire afternoon and a portion of the evening in giving his opinion upon steam, boilers, the power of steam, and the cause of explosions. He was followed by Mr. GEORGE SEWELL, a Chief Engineer in the U. S. Navy. He testified that he was general inspector of boilers at the time those of the Chenango were about completed. They had been subjected to the required hydraulic pressure, and returned to him by the local inspector as in good condition; saw them during the ninety-six hours and made a favorable report of their performance, so far as being tight and working well; never heard any complaints from the Chief Engineer of the vessel; some unimportant things were complained of after the vessel was taken to the Navy-yard, by Mr. Cahill, all of which were rectified, and witness believed well done, as he heard no further complaints on the subject; the boilers particularly had never been complained of in any manner; was on board the Mohican on her trial trip; the engines and boilers are of the same class as those on the Chenango; they worked well; there was no unusual foaming, and no unusual amount of water let out of the cylinders through the valves; the engines made as high as 31 revolutions per minute for a short time, and the vessel went at the rate of 13 miles an hour; the damage to the boiler of the Chenango witness contended was simply a rupture; had it been an explosion the damage would have been one hundred times as great as it was; witness could give no definite opinion as to the cause of the explosion.

The investigation was adjourned pending the examination of Mr. SEWELL.

FRIDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

The investigation into the disaster on board the Chenango drags its slow length along, and, from present appearances, will not be concluded before the middle of next month. Mr. GEORGE SEWELL, an engineer in the navy, concluded his evidence yesterday afternoon, which was in effect that the Martin boiler was as good and as safe as any other marine boiler in use, and better in some respects. Mr. E. N. DICKERSON was recalled, and answered a question by one of the jurors, when Mr. JAMES MONTGOMERY, the inventor of certain improvements in the boiler now called the Martin boiler, was placed upon the stand. He gave a thorough history of steam boilers, and denounced Martin's (so-called) invention as quackery. He proved that the boiler exploded for want of water on the heating surface. The witness occupied the greater portion of the evening, and, the jury objecting to midnight sessions, insisted upon an adjournment until Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which time Mr. MONTGOMERY will resume his evidence.

THE CULTIVATION OF THE CRANBERRY is much more easy and successful in the common dry soil of private gardens, market gardens, or in field culture, than in the usual clumsy way in bogs and meadows. The yield this season, in my method of culture, was over 400 bushels per acre. Explicit directions for cultivation, with price of cranberry plants and all other useful and ornamental trees, plants and shrubs, will be sent by mail. Plants prepaid by mail.

U. S. 5-20s BONDS.
These Bonds are issued under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1864, which provides that all Bonds issued under this Act shall be EXEMPT FROM TAXATION by or under any State or municipal authority. Subscriptions to these Bonds are received in United States notes or notes of National Banks. They are TO BE REDEEMED IN COIN, at the pleasure of the Government, at any period not less than ten nor more than forty years from their date, and until their redemption FIVE PER CENT. INTEREST WILL BE PAID IN COIN, on Bonds of not over one hundred dollars annually, and on all other Bonds semi-annually. The interest is payable on the first days of March and September in each year.
Registered Bonds are recorded on the Books of the United States Treasurer, and can be transferred only on the owner's order. Coupon Bonds are payable to bearer, and are more convenient for commercial uses.
Subscribers to this loan will have the option of having their Bonds draw interest from March 1, by paying the accrued interest in coin, (or in United States notes, or the notes of National Banks, adding fifty per cent. for premium,) or receive them drawing interest from the date of subscription and deposit.
As these Bonds are exempt from municipal or State taxation, their value is increased from one to three per cent. per annum, according to the rate of tax levies in various parts of the country.
At the present rate of premium on gold they pay over eight per cent. interest in currency, and are of equal convenience as a permanent or temporary investment.
It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as the various descriptions of United States Bonds. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities only, is pledged for payment, while for the debts of the United States the whole property of the country is holden to secure the payment of both principal and interest in coin.
These Bonds may be subscribed for in sums from $50 up to any magnitude, on the same terms, and are thus made equally available to the smallest lender and the largest capitalist. They can be converted into money at any moment, and the holder will have the benefit of the interest.
The fact that all duties on imports are payable in specie furnishes a fund for the payment of interest on all Government Bonds largely in excess of the wants of the treasury for this purpose.
Instructions to the National Banks acting as loan agents were not issued from the United States Treasury until March 26, but in the first three weeks of April the subscriptions have averaged more than TEN MILLIONS A WEEK.
Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States at Washington, and the Assistant Treasurers at New-York, Boston and Philadelphia, and by the First National Bank of New-York, No. 4 Wall-st.
Second National Bank of New-York, 52d-st. and B'way.

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money. All respectable banks and bankers throughout the country will furnish further information on application, and afford every facility to subscribers.

DIABETES,
STONE IN THE BLADDER, CALCULUS, GRAVEL
BRICK DUST DEPOSIT, AND MUCOUS
OR MILKY DISCHARGES
AFTER URINATING.
IRRITATION OF THE NECK OF THE BLADDER,
INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS,
CATARRH OF THE BLADDER,
STRANGURY AND BURNING, OR PAINFUL URINATING.
For these diseases it is truly a sovereign remedy, and too much cannot be said in its praise. A single dose has been known to relieve the most urgent symptoms.
Any one troubled with the distressing pain in the small of the back, which precedes the Diabetes, on the day of the Constitution Water will relieve you like magic.
PHYSICIANS
have long since given up the use of buchu, cubebs and juniper in the treatment of these diseases, and only use them for the want of a better remedy.
CONSTITUTION WATER
has proved itself equal to the task that has devolved upon it.
DIURETICS
irritate and clench the kidneys, and by constant use soon lead to chronic degeneration and confirmed disease.
We present the Constitution Water to the public, with the conviction that it has no equal in relieving the class of diseases for which it has been found so eminently successful for curing; and we trust that we shall be rewarded for our efforts in bringing forward a remedy in a form to meet the requirements of patient and physician.
IN DYSMENORRHŒA, OR PAINFUL MENSTRUATION, OR LEUCORRHŒA, OR
PROFUSE FLOWING.
Both diseases arising from a vitiated secretion of the menstrual fluid—in one case making two ills, and accompanied by severe pain; and the other a too profuse secretion, which will be speedily cured by the Constitution Water.
That disease known as FALLING OF THE WOMB, which is the result of a relaxation of the ligaments of that organ, and is known by dragging of bearing-down and dragging pains in the back and sides, and at times accompanied by sharp, lancinating or shooting pains through the parts, will, in all cases, be removed by the medicine.
There is another class of symptoms arising from IRRITATION OF THE WOMB, which physicians call Nervousness, which word covers up much ignorance, and in nine cases out of ten the doctor does not really know whether the symptoms are the disease or the disease the symptoms. We can only enumerate them here. I speak more particularly of Cold Feet, Palpitation of the Heart, Imperfect Memory, Wakefulness, Flashes of Heat, Languor, Lassitude and Dimness of Vision.
SUPPRESSED MENSTRUATION,
Which, in the unmarried female, is a constant recurring disease, and through neglect the seeds of more grave and dangerous maladies are the result; and as month after month passes without an effort being made to assist nature, the suppression becomes chronic, the patient gradually loses her appetite, her bowels are constipated, night sweats come on, and consumption finally ends her career.

THE CASE OF HUTCHINGS, THE "LIGHTNING CALCULATOR."
There was published in these columns a few days since the remarkable cure of Hutchings, the "Lightning Calculator," so well known to the public during the many years he exhibited his wonderful arithmetical powers at Barnum's Museum, by the celebrated Oculist and Aurist, Dr. Von Eisenberg, of this City. Hutchings is represented to have been at the point of death, and but for the timely interference of the Doctor, would now be resting in his grave. This is a remarkable case, and worthy of the attention of persons similarly afflicted.
We think it is but just to Doctor Von Eisenberg to call public attention to this case. There are hundreds in the community suffering from catarrh, who, like the "Lightning Calculator," if not actually praying for death, are ready to accept of anything that promises to relieve them from their distresses. To such we would say, trifle not with inexperienced men, but consult, without unnecessary delay, Dr. Von Eisenberg, who, at least, has the honesty to assure his patients whether it is within his power to make them whole or not.
DEAFNESS CURED,
DEAFNESS CURED.
DEAFNESS CURED.
From the Tribune.
EARS TO THE DEAF.
Every man, and especially every woman, believes in his or her physician. There are philosophical minds which hold to an abstract faith in Allopathy, or Homeopathy, or Hydropathy, or some other form of scientific cure; but with the world at large the belief is not in the system, but in the doctor. Especially is this true as regards aurists and oculists. The patient who has recovered his sight or his hearing is sure that the blessing could have been restored to him by no other practitioner than that particular one by whom his eyes or ears were opened. Dr. Von Eisenberg is among our best-known aurists. He has not lent us ears as a brother practitioner has lent us eyes, and in whose skill, therefore, we believe above all others. But we hear of him from those who esteem him not merely as a surgeon, but as a benefactor. A recent case has been related to us, for the truthfulness of which we can vouch, though we can name no names. The patient was a lady who had been deaf from infancy, as a consequence of some of the ailments to which children are liable. Latterly the disease had taken an acute form, and the patient was subject to intense suffering. The deafness was rapidly becoming complete, and the general health breaking down under the physical exhaustion attendant upon constant pain. Ordinary remedies and ordinary advice were useless, and Dr. Von Eisenberg was called in. We need not repeat his diagnosis, for that would be only a list of hard names to the general reader. But he detected at sight the seat of disease, first in one portion of the organism, then in another, and with manipulation as skillful as his insight was accurate, he removed the causes, and she who, from infancy, had heard with difficulty, and latterly hardly at all, was restored first to perfect hearing and then to perfect health. Dr. Von Eisenberg's advertisement reminds us of this case, which we thus briefly relate, though not at his solicitation. Let him that hath not ears, hear.
From the Christian Times.
SIGHT RESTORED.
CONCERNING EYES AND OCULISTS.
Of the five senses, that which we call seeing is the most important and most valued. In proportion as this sense fails us, we are reduced to helplessness. If entirely destitute of sight, how slow would be our progress in knowledge, and how limited our sphere of action and usefulness. Endowed with it, the universe becomes a new creation, clothed with beauty and diversified by that infinite variety which never fails to attract the mind and heart.
For several months past this has been a practical subject to us. An inflamed condition of the eyelids communicating itself to the pupil, rendered the discharge of daily duties not only painful, but dangerous. Attributing it to the effect of a cold, we endured it through the Spring, with the hope that with the return of warm weather it would entirely disappear. But in this we were doomed to disappointment. Summer returned, but not our wonted sight. What might have been the result, either of further neglect or of incompetent treatment, we cannot say.
Stating our case to a friend, he assured us that a similar one in his own family had recently been treated with entire success by Dr. Von Eisenberg, of this City. Satisfying ourselves by more particular inquiries that the doctor is no empiric, but a scientific oculist and aurist, we concluded to seek the benefits of his treatment, which we have now reason to acknowledge in very great. Though but a few weeks under his care, the appearance of our eyes has totally changed. The pupil is now full and clear, and the lids are entirely free from inflammation. The doctor says that the optic nerve has been weakened and the retina assumed a chronic inflammatory state, affecting more or less all the other tissues, and threatening, if neglected, to end in Amaurosis. Ophthalmitis, is the term we believe, which oculists apply to eyes affected as were ours. Having obtained the much desired relief, we take great pleasure in acknowledging our indebtedness to the talent of Dr. Von Eisenberg, and of calling to it the attention of others who may be suffering from a similar or even worse condition of their eyes. It is said that Providence provides an antidote for every bane. It is certain that the eye is, in these times, subject to severer ills than formerly. Let us be thankful, then, that as we increase the tendencies which destroy the organ of vision, the progress of science keeps pace with these tendencies, if not in advance of them.

GEN. BUTLER IN NEW-ORLEANS.
One volume, octavo, paper, price 75 cents.
With the view of meeting the extensive popular demand for this remarkable book, this edition has been prepared in PEOPLE'S EDITION form, and is similar to that of Harper's Magazine. Some of the less important documents are omitted, and in some instances the account has been condensed, yet never so as to interfere with the interest or completeness of the story.
Unquestionably this book stands preeminent in interest among all yet vouchsafed by the rebellion. Its subject and author combine to render it the most popular of all. Edition after edition, and that as fast as they could be printed, it has been most warmly commended by the loyal press of the country, and recently has it been by a portion at least of the English press, by whom it is acknowledged to be a complete vindication of Gen. Butler from the malicious charges which envy and hatred have brought against him.
It contains an anecdotal sketch of Gen. Butler's brilliant and remarkable career at the bar of Massachusetts; a history of the secession movement in Baltimore; the conflict between Gen. Butler and the Rebel Legislature at Washington, in December, 1861; the real plans of the rebels; Gen. Butler and the Irish; Gen. Butler and the Women; his efforts in preventing Massachusetts from war; the celebrated order; Assaults on Washington; his night march to Baltimore; collision with Gen. Scott; his course at Fortress Monroe; the history of the "contraband" question; his advice to the Administration how to take Richmond; the truth about the battle of Great Bethel; the Hatteras expedition; the secret history of the New-Orle

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

CATARRH CURED.

FROM REV. FRED. E. JEWELL,
PROFESSOR OF THE STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, ALBANY, N. Y.

This may certify that I have been, since 1846, subject to violent periodical attacks of catarrh, marked by a highly inflamed condition of the lining membrane of the cavities of the head, producing a most distressing species of headache, for days at a time, wholly incapacitating me from business, and, during the paroxysms, confining me to the bed. In some instances the inflammation has extended to the throat, occasioning toothache; to the throat, producing hoarseness and partial loss of voice; and twice it has so affected the left eye as to confine me for a month or more to a darkened room. These attacks have been accompanied by strong febrile symptoms; by stoppages of the head, and in the first stages by watery discharges from the nose, and subsequently becoming acrid and yellow, and, toward the close of the attack, becoming bloody and purulent. I have tried medicines of almost every kind; external applications to the head, such as camphor, ginger, hot vinegar, snuffs of some half dozen kinds, and other catarrhal preparations, together with internal remedies, such as alteratives, cathartics and emetics. These have produced no change in the occurrence or character of the disease, and, in most cases with little or no temporary relief. I had come, at length, to believe the disease to be practically beyond either cure or material alleviation.

Under these circumstances, I was led, some five months ago, to make a trial of Dr. Lighthill's treatment. His method at once approved itself to my judgment as simple, philosophical, and likely to be effective. Notwithstanding the disadvantages under which he labored in dealing with a disease of such long standing, aggravated by nervous debility and dyspepsia, and constantly induced by the accidents of my professional labor, I found the treatment reaching the disease as it had never been reached before, and producing such a modification and alleviation of its character as I had supposed impossible. I chronicle the result thus:

Although I have been situated several times so that I should formerly have believed a severe attack of my catarrh inevitable, I have escaped this far; the symptoms of threatened attack have been very light, and have yielded to the remedies employed by Dr. Lighthill, without the need of recourse to the old hot fumigations, or emetics, and the discharges from the head have resumed the original and natural condition. That I have been able to obtain so material a relief is to me a cause of gratitude. In that alone I am repaid for whatever the treatment may have cost me.

I make this statement unsolicited, as a means of acknowledging my obligations to Dr. Lighthill's method of treating catarrh, and with a view to aid any who may have suffered from that disease in forming a just opinion of its merits, and its probable utility in their own case.

FREDERICK E. JEWELL.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 15, 1864.

REMARKABLE CURE OF DEAFNESS.

From Rev. Joseph R. Clarke, Rector of St. James' Church.

SYRACUSE, Feb. 20, 1864.

I have been deaf in one ear ever since I was in College, some twenty years ago. By the skill of Dr. Lighthill, the hearing was entirely restored, so that now I hear alike with both ears, and I find that I can use my voice with much more ease and comfort than before.

JOSEPH R. CLARKE.

From the Rev. John Nott, D. D., Professor in Union College, Schenectady.

Since I first publicly acknowledged the great benefits which I received from the skillful treatment of Dr. Lighthill, in regard to my hearing, letters of inquiry have incessantly poured upon me from all parts of the country, from parties desiring to learn the particulars of my case, and I am indeed surprised at the number of individuals who are affected similar to the manner in which I have been, and, therefore, feel it more and more a sacred duty which I owe to these sufferers, to direct them to a proper and reliable source to obtain the benefit they so much covet, and which so many afflicted ones have hitherto sought in vain. Just as I had done previous to applying to Dr. Lighthill.

I had from infancy one very deaf ear, which always discharged some or less offensive matter, and was the source of the greatest annoyance and discomfort to me. Last year the other ear also became diseased, and both earache discharged a yellow matter, very profuse and highly offensive. My hearing became very much impaired, and the discharge produced the greatest debility of body and depression of spirits. I applied to my family, physician and other practitioners, without deriving any benefit, and almost despaired of being restored to health, when, providentially, I applied to Dr. Lighthill. Under his treatment my ears began to improve at once, and continued to do so until, in a comparatively short time, both earsWere healed, the discharge removed, and my hearing restored. At first I feared the cure would not be permanent, or that the stoppage of a discharge of so long standing might prove detrimental to my general health—a fear which I find a great many entertain in regard to the removal of discharge from the ear. My experience, however, has proved conclusively that my apprehensions were entirely groundless in both respects, for both ears are as well, and my hearing is as good at present, as the day I left off treatment, and the stoppage of discharge, instead of proving detrimental to my health, has given the highest elasticity and vigor to my body, and a flow of spirits and experienced for a long time previous.

I wish that the above might serve as a general answer to the interested, but should one or the other desire to apply to me personally, or by letter, I will cheerfully satisfy reasonable demands upon my time.

I avail myself of this opportunity of again publicly expressing my deeply felt gratitude to Dr. Lighthill, whom I esteem as a gentleman and a man of science, in whom the highest confidence may be placed. JOHN NOTT.

References to parties of the highest respectability residing in the City, who have been cured of Deafness, Catarrh, &c., may be had on application.

THE BEST BOOKS OF THE DAY ARE

RELIGIOUS HISTORY AND CRITICISM. By ERNEST RENAN, author of "The Life of Jesus." Translated from the latest French edition by Rev. O. B. FROTHINGHAM, of the Third Unitarian Church, N. Y. With an interesting biographical introduction. A remarkable and powerful book, that will be read by every thinking man. Large octavo, cloth, $2 50.

NEPENTHE. A new novel, written with great vigor and freshness of style, and one that will find many lovers among cultivated people. 12mo, cloth, $1 50.

RED-TAPE AND PIGEON-HOLE GENERALS. A very readable and entertaining book, giving graphic sketches of life in the Army of the Potomac, and caricaturing with deserved satire the red-tape and pigeon-hole propensities of too many of the higher officers of that army. 12mo, cloth, $1 25.

THE ART OF CONVERSATION.—With directions for Self-Culture. An admirably conceived and entertaining book—sensible, instructive, and full of suggestions valuable to every one who desires to be either a good talker or listener, or who wishes to appear to advantage in good society. 12mo., cloth, $1 25.

PRIVATE MILES O'REILLY—His Songs, Services and Speeches.—This book, published so recently, is selling immensely. A new edition is just ready. It is one of the most laughable books published, and is selling like Artemus Ward's and Orpheus C. Kerr's Comic Books. Illustrated. 12mo., cloth, $1 25.

TALES FROM THE OPERA.—A fascinating little volume of Novelettes based upon the most celebrated and familiar Operas—giving the plot of each opera in the agreeable form of an interesting and attractive story. 12mo., cloth, $1 25.

LYRICS OF A DAY.—A remarkable volume of poems, mostly on the war. By a Volunteer in the United States service. No book of poetry published for years has called forth so much admiration as has this anonymous volume. 12mo, cloth, $1.

THE YACHTMAN'S PRIMER.—A manual for the amateur sailor and yachtman, filled with hints and suggestions of great value to the lover of sport. By T. R. WARREN. 12mo. 50 cents.

Read what the Press says of it:

From the Boston Post.

We cordially commend it as an able illustration of the American life and manners it professes to represent. The characters are boldly and skillfully drawn, and the vices and follies of our social and political system are lashed with no sparing hand. The book is destined to exert a marked influence.

From the Evening Journal, Albany.

The interest turns upon events which happened just previous to and were in some manner the forerunner of the rebellion. There is a good deal of adroitness in the construction of the story, and a good deal of skill in the sketching of characters. We are much mistaken if "Dangerfield's Rest" does not win a wide popularity.

From the Times, Troy.

The story is written with great precisiveness, and contains many "startling situations." The characters are admirably delineated; the minor details sketched with tact and ability, and the plot developed in a fascinating and satisfactory manner.

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU.
A positive and Specific Remedy for Diseases of the BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL and DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.

This medicine increases the power of digestion and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the water or calcerous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements, are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for Men, Women, or Children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

For weaknesses arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion or Abuse, attended with the following symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,	Loss of Power,
Loss of Memory,	Difficulty of Breathing,
Weak Nerves,	Trembling,
Horror of Disease,	Wakefulness,
Dimness of Vision,	Pain in the Back,
Hot Hands,	Flushing of the Body,
Dryness of the Skin,	Eruptions on the Face,
Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System,	Pallid Countenance.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on, which this medicine invariably removes, soon follow

IMPOTENCY, VARICITY, EPILEPTIC FITS,

in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION!

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the Insane Asylums and the melancholy deaths by Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

THE CONSTITUTION ONCE AFFECTED BY OR PRONE TO ANY WEAKNESS

requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most skeptical.

[illegible] which will take an anxious load of apprehension from the minds of thousands in this Territory, for a failure of the crops next Fall would reduce nearly every inhabitant of Utah to starvation.

Breadstuffs have been scarcer here than now, but I am told that the present are the maximum of prices known in the history of the Territory, not even excepting the time of the "grasshopper war," nine or ten years ago, when many a Mormon ate nothing for months but "sego" bulbs and weeds.

But even with the recent accumulations, the aggregate of grain in the mountains (six year) is reported considerably below the average. So we may conclude that in many places in the Territory, the latter spring wheat, and all late crops, can scarcely be relied upon for a good yield, unless other moves and measures be resorted to in [illegible].

The interest in the agricultural productions of this Territory does not concern the destinies thereof alone, but gives the thousands of adventurous spirit who are now or will soon be engaged in developing the mineral resources of the neighboring Territories.

One of the nearest articles in the market is butter. It sells now at eighty cents per pound, though some was sold a few days ago at a dollar and a quarter. The last is decidedly a stiff price. I have known it bought here at ten cents, but not of late years.

A stranger to this city, or rather the business street of this city, coming it now and having seen it a month ago, would scarcely recognize it, for the crowds of "hangers-on"—nothing not only gold diggers and prospectors, but persons engaged in obtaining provisions for Idaho—are away with their early trains for the gold field of that Territory, and the places where such businesses were wont to congregate, approximated to the aspect of a "deserted village." This, however, will only be temporary, for in little time the gold seeking emigration will pour through the streets.

Next week will doubtless be a great time, for the Mormon General Conference convenes on Wednesday, and Mr. E. C. Brown, the missionary from or in behalf of young Joseph Smith, of Nauvoo, advertises a conference on the same day. Thus there are to be two great conferences in this City of the Saints. One needs the attributes of ubiquity to be able to do justice to both institutions.

Mr. Brown is evidently very desirous of getting at the body of the Mormon people, though he finds his way beset with difficulties, for the Mormon Brigham is not at all inclined to assist him in this matter. So Brown published a circular in the Vedette, denouncing Brigham and other leaders as wicked and mercenary shepherds, and inviting the flock to return to him (Brown) as one of the true shepherds. He obtains a few followers and converts, and feels sanguine that he will be able to "do a great work" in recovering the lost sheep.

The busiest theatrical season closes next week. A "farewell" representation of "Pizarro in Peru" and the "Angel of Midnight." On the first performance of the last-named play, Mrs. Irving took her benefit, and a bumper it was, for the house was crowded from gallery to parquet.

On Saturday Bouncicault's long expected "Colleen Bawn" will be presented, for the benefit of the office of the "Deseret Dramatic Association." Next week there will certainly be full houses for the three or four nights of performance, as the country folks will all be in to attend to spiritual matters, and will go down during a week in at the theatre as well, and thence to the temple of the drama.

Gambling has been demonstrated during the past two Winters, that the Salt Lake Theatre cannot be supported on the strength of Salt Lake intelligence. Artists must be had from a distance. Tom Irving have made a good thing of it the past Winter, and other adventurous proteges of the historic art may do likewise, for Brigham's theatre is a big institution and a decidedly paying one too.

AFFAIRS IN THE WEST.

The Alleged Conspiracy—Gen. Sickles—The Rising in Louisiana—Miscellaneous.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

CHICAGO, Monday, April 25, 1864.

The story of the Herald about an extensive conspiracy in the North-west, to produce a revolution against the Government, is absurd. There are doubtless some leading spirits who would gladly inaugurate such a movement, but they know too well the power of the Government, and the strength of the loyal constituents of our people to attempt it. Such reports can serve no other purpose than to encourage the rebels to renewed efforts and continued perseverance in their bad cause—and, perhaps, this was the original of putting them afoot.

I have seen a letter written above the Rebel frontier in Kentucky, by a member of the Chicago Mercantile Battery. It confirms the worst features of that bad affair, and says that the expedition will have to be abandoned. The blame is distributed between Gens. BANKS, FRANKLIN and BURBRIDGE. Our loss is put down at nearly 2,000 killed, wounded and prisoners, and the rebel loss "something less, but heavy." It is evident from the very outlines of the affair that there was a fearful dash in generalship somewhere.

Gen. SHERMAN passed through this city last week, on his way South. He met with an enthusiastic reception, and enjoyed the "freedom of the city" while he remained here. On Thursday evening he delivered a public address in Bryan Hall. An immense throng turned out to greet him, and his speech was one of great ability; and, as might be expected from one who has given a jag in his country, thoroughly patriotic. How nicely contrasts such democracy as his, with that of the "peace rebels," who sympathize with treason. There was one remark of his: "When I became a soldier, I ceased to be a partisan," the sentiment of which we could commend to other Generals of both parties, as well as to statesmen, who, at this crisis, are unable to rise above party.

The Tenth Anniversary of the birth of Masonry was duly observed by his companions of the St. George's Society of this city on Saturday. There was a public at Bryan Hall, with music, speaking, &c., and a supper in the evening. In the afternoon the society went out to Rose Hill Cemetery, and planted an oak in their lot, to be known as the Masonic Oak, and in commemoration of this anniversary.

There is considerable excitement throughout the West just now, in relation to the pretty general effort which is being put forth to drive out of circulation the issues of all private banks, and to substitute Treasury Notes, and the issues of the New National Banks. Our Board of Trade has resolved in favor of the measure, and a strenuous effort will be made to carry it into effect. It meets with decided opposition from various quarters, and creates no little disturbance in financial circles. It will doubtless be successful, as the people, generally favor the National currency first, and next, that of the National Banks. In Iowa, the banks, which are branches of the State Bank, take the lead in the movement, and have already thrown out the bills of several States. The private banks, of course, will suffer by this measure; in fact, their "occupation" will be gone. If it is entirely successful, and consequently they are fighting against it, and are likely to produce some trouble with the small National Banks, which are springing up all over the country. Yet such is the direction and strength of public sentiment that the State corporations are destined to be "pushed to the wall."

Our City election, which took place on Tuesday, resulted, as you have doubtless been informed by telegraph, in a Union victory—though it will be a barren one, as matters now stand. Although we gained four members, and tied the Council, yet the casting vote of the Mayor gives the "Copp" control of that body, and saddles upon the City for another year the infamous Times as the official organ.

The weather still continues wet and disagreeable. Up to this date there have been but five days in April clear from rain or snow. It is putting everything in the agricultural way in the background. The Straits of Mackinaw are at length open, and navigation has been fully resumed. There was something like 7,000,000 bushels of grain—flour included—waiting here for shipment. A large quantity has already cleared. Business is active. One bad sign is apparent—our dry goods jobbers are relaxing their cash system and crediting largely. This stimulates purchasing by the country merchants, and by enabling them to give time to their customers, induces extravagance. Look out for breakers in the West. More favorable reports come in from the growing wheat crop; but it would seem that the long-continued rain of the present month must drown it out.

THE CALL UPON THE NORTHWEST.

The Proposition of the Governors.

In his proclamation to the people of Illinois, Gov. YATES says: On the 21st of April, the Governors of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin submitted to the President of the United States a proposition to furnish volunteers from their respective States for the coming campaign:

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, April 21, 1864.

To the President of the United States:

1. The Governors of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin offer the President infantry troops for the approaching campaign.

2. The term of service to be one hundred days, reckoning from the date of muster into the service of the United States, unless sooner discharged.

3. The troops to be mustered into the service of the United States by regiments, when the regiments are filled up, according to regulations, to the maximum strength. The regiments to be organized according to the regulations of the War Department. The whole number to be furnished within twenty days from date of notice of the acceptance of the proposition.

4. The troops to be clothed, armed, equipped, subsisted, transported and paid as other United States infantry volunteers, and to serve in fortifications or wherever their services may be required, within or without their respective States.

5. No bounty to be paid the troops nor the service charged or credited on any draft.

6. The draft for three years' service to go on in any State or district where the quota is not filled up; but if an officer or soldier in the special service should be drafted he shall be credited for the service rendered.

(Signed) JOHN BROUGH, Governor of Ohio.
O. H. MORTON, Governor of Indiana.
RICH'D YATES, Governor of Illinois.
W. M. STONE, Governor of Iowa.

The foregoing proposition of the Governors is accepted, and the Secretary of War is directed to carry it into execution. A. LINCOLN.

APRIL 23, 1864.

I shall not set forth the various reasons which induced the Executive of these States to submit their proposition. It will be sufficient for you to know that it is evident from the circumstances which surrounded us, that the battles which are to decide the fate of the country are soon to be fought. The enemy has, during the past Winter, been concentrating all his strength for the Summer campaign which is before us. It is of the utmost importance to meet them with the greatest force, and with the most overwhelming numbers which it is possible to bring to bear.

You are also aware that the country which has already been wrested from the grasp of the enemy is of vast extent, embracing many States and Territories, many thousands of miles of sea coast, and the whole length of the Mississippi River and of most of her tributaries, and that to hold this country and these long lines of sea and river coast requires large stationary forces.

The strongholds, forts, garrisons, cities and towns situated as they are in the midst of populations which are for the most part disloyal, and ready to take upon the withdrawal of our troops, are almost innumerable, and require by far the greater part of our immense army in their protection and defense. In this view of the case, the Executives of the most Western States believed that the efficiency of the army might be immensely increased by a volunteer force, to be immediately raised, which should occupy the points already taken, and release our veteran troops and send them forward to join the main body of the army, which is soon to engage the forces of the enemy. It will be apparent also, that while these forces are to be employed in fortifications, and at such points as the Government may require them now, in the future also, they will place in the hands of the States the means to repel invasion from their borders, suppress insurrection, and maintain the peace.

The mode of enlistments, places of rendezvous, and all information pertaining to organization, &c., will be communicated to you by the Adjutant-General of the State.

I make my appeal to the State of Illinois to respond to the Government with her full quota of 30,000 men in the next twenty days. Although the State has thus far exceeded her quota under all calls by so many thousands, I doubt not she will stand ready to strengthen the arm of the Government in this trying hour, and that she will send this timely necessary relief to her gallant sons now in the field, and who have so distinguished her proud name upon every battle-field of the war. It is confidently hoped that by the timely aid which may be thus given our veteran army, the last blow may be given this wicked rebellion, and the Government reestablished, the Union restored and all the blessings of a stable and lasting peace secured.

Though in the North and in the South the notes of preparation for the conflict fill the land, yet for the first time have I fully seen the beginning of the end of this frightful war. All that is now required is, that the Government put forth its power at the right time and in the right place.

The people of Illinois have confidence in her sons, and in the great Commander, Gen. GRANT, whom she has given to the country, as well as in the armies under his command. Let us do all in our power to uphold and strengthen their arms.

Glorious Illinois, in every period of this war you have done your duty. The shining achievements of your sons are the admiration of the world. In this most eventful hour you will not fail.

RICHARD YATES, Governor.

WASHINGTON CITY, D. C., April 21, 1864.

(PROCLAMATION BY GOVERNOR MORTON.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
INDIANAPOLIS, Saturday, April 23, 1864.

To the People of Indiana:

The Governors of Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Indiana have offered to raise for the service of the General Government 30,000 men, for the period of 100 days, to perform such military service as may be required of them in any State. They will be armed, subsisted and clothed and be paid by the United States, but receive no bounty. They will be mustered into the United States for the period designated, the time to commence from the date of muster. The importance of making the approaching campaign successful and decisive is not to be overestimated, and I feel confident that this call will be promptly and fully responded to. I need not enter into the reasons which induced the making of this offer, and its acceptance by the Government, as they will be suggested to all by the condition and position of our military affairs.

I therefore call for 30,000 volunteers to rendezvous at such places as may be hereafter designated, and to be organized under instructions to be given by the Adjutant-General. Existing organizations of the Indiana Legion offering their services will be preserved when the regiment or company is filled to the minimum number, under the regulations governing the Army of the United States.

(Signed) O. P. MORTON, Governor of Indiana.

PROCLAMATION OF GOV. BROUGH.

COLUMBUS, April 24.

GENERAL ORDER No. 12.—The regiments, battalions, and independent companies of infantry of the National Guard of Ohio, are hereby called into active service for the term of one hundred (100) days unless sooner discharged. They will be clothed, armed, equipped, transported and paid by the United States Government. These organizations will rendezvous at the nearest eligible place in their respective counties; the places to be fixed by the commanding officer, and to be on a list of rendezvous where practicable, on Monday, May 23, 1864, and report by telegraph to these headquarters at 4 o'clock P. M. on the same day, the number of men present for duty. The alacrity with which all calls for the military forces of the State have been heretofore met, furnishes the surest guarantee that the National Guard will be prompt in assembling at the appointed time. Our armies in the field are marshaling for a decisive blow, and the citizen soldiery will share the glory of the crowning victories of the campaign, by relieving our veteran regiments from post and garrison duty, to allow them to engage in the more arduous labors of the field.

By order of the Governor.

E. E. COWEN, Adjutant-General of Ohio.

PROSPECTS OF THE WHEAT CROP.—Some of the Western papers have said much about the effects of a bad Winter upon the growing wheat, but after careful inquiry the Cincinnati Gazette does not anticipate a diminution to exceed one-third, and even this is probably an excessive estimate of the damage. The Gazette concludes an article as follows:

"It is safe to say that the average wheat crop of these States should be, this year, at least 200,000,000 of bushels. On the supposition that there will be two-thirds of a crop, the deficiency will reach 66,000,000 of bushels, which at present prices would leave the farmers short about 200,000,000. They will therefore perceive the necessity of directing unusual attention to the Spring crop.

"It should be noticed, however, that while the month of April has thus far been unfavorable for the preliminary labor of the seedbed, it has been exceedingly propitious to the development of the wheatfield. Where it was then in the ground it will be found that the slow growth consequent upon the cool weather will insure much larger stools, and where little was expected much will be gathered. A warm April would have shot the stalks rapidly forward with less development at the base.

"On the whole, under the stimulant of high prices it is quite probable that the agricultural products of these States will fully equal an average year in quantity, and the value thereof be much greater than that of any previous year, especially when measured by the value of land; that is, the greatest value of the productions for 1864 will pay more land in these States than the gold value realized at any previous time."

THE BARK SEA BRIDE.

How Captured by the Alabama—Official Account by W. R. G. Mellen, U. S. Consul at Mauritius.

We find the following account of the capture of the bark Sea Bride, in the Port Louis (Mauritius) Commercial Gazette:

CONSULATE OF THE U. S. OF AMERICA,
MAURITIUS, February 17, 1864.

Messrs. Hendlette & Parkins,

GENTLEMEN—As you have expressed a desire for a brief statement of the circumstances relating to the Sea Bride and her cargo, which have created some interest in commercial circles within the last few days, I take great pleasure in transmitting you the same which you are at liberty to use in any manner you may think expedient.

The bark Sea Bride, of 447 tons register, owned by C. F. Warre, of Boston, was captured by the Alabama on the 5th of August last, just at the entrance of Table Bay. It is a question yet to be settled whether the Sea Bride was not in neutral waters—within three miles of the shore—when captured. It is certain that had an action ensued between the captor and an American man-of-war, at the point where the capture was made, many of the shot must have been sent far over land, and inflicted no inconsiderable injury.

Subsequently the Sea Bride was taken to Angra Pequina, into which harbor—if that be, as is now alleged, within British jurisdiction—she was admitted in direct contravention of the Treaty of 1794. There she was transferred to one ELMERONA (THOMAS or THOMPSONNAN, for both names are given; and whether two persons are meant, or both names belong to one person, or one name be a convenient alias, is uncertain). This ELMERONA is connected with (generally supposed to be a partner in) the house of R. GRAHAM & Co., of Cape Town. A part of the Sea Bride's cargo was landed on Penguin Island, under the direction of the said ELMERONA assisted by other parties hailing from the Cape. The vessel was also disguised in various ways; her own name and port painted out and the name Hellen or Helena Hemisey painted in; her hull painted black with white ports, and her royal masts cut away. Afterward the vessel put to sea under the command of one CLOSEN or CLOSEL, having the said ELMERONA or his alias on board as supercargo. In due time the Sea Bride arrived at Foulpointe, where the aforesaid ELMERONA chartered the brig Reward of this port to convey hither that portion of the Sea Bride's cargo which yet remained on board her. A large part of this cargo was transhipped directly from the Sea Bride to the Reward, which vessel, having received her lading, started on her voyage toward this island. But having sprung a leak, the Reward was forced to put into St. Marie where she was condemned, and the merchandise stored. The said ELMERONA came to Mauritius and induced the owner or agent of the Reward to charter the Providence Packet to proceed to St. Marie for the aforesaid merchandise. The said Sirine reached this port, with the said goods on board, on the 9th inst., which goods, be it understood, have never been adjudged lawful prize by any competent Court. They are now landing from the Sirine and stored in the warehouse of Messrs. BAYNE, Thomson & Co.

All the facts in the case, with ample evidence to substantiate the same, were laid before the Colonial Government previous to the arrival of the Sirine, and a demand made for the seizure and restoration of the merchandise to its original and lawful owners. This demand was based on the ground that no title can vest in captured property previous to its condemnation; that the introduction of any such property into a British port is expressly prohibited by the Treaty of 1794; that the appropriation of it is piracy; and that His Excellency the Governor of Cape Colony has, on Consular demand, restored a part of the very same cargo of the Sea Bride which was taken there. This application, I am sorry to say, His Excellency the Governor of Mauritius has refused to grant, on the ground that instructions would not justify it. It thus appears that the Governors of these colonies interpret their instructions very differently—if, as is to be presumed, both have received the same instructions.

But though the Governor may decline to interfere officially, there is a moral interference which every honorable and high-minded merchant of Port Louis is at perfect liberty to give. For the appropriation of uncondemned captured property, the civilized world long since agreed to regard as PIRACY. Nearly two hundred years ago, Capt. KIDD, of infamous memory, was executed at Tyburn for precisely this offence—an offence committed in these very seas. It remains to be seen whether his offence is, at this late day, to be repeated with impunity. It remains to be seen whether the merchants of Port Louis, or any of them, and especially any who hold official position bestowed by foreign powers, are disposed to soil their hands and their consciences by endeavoring to share in the proceeds of this stolen American property—whether by complicity, direct or indirect, with the original purloiners, they are willing to participate in their guilt—willing to stand before the world as so doing. That some of them are not, I know—I do not even suspect the before. Before any shall decide that to compromise themselves, I wish they might take into grave consideration the following pregnant words of Earl RUSSELL in his address at Blairgowrie: "It is an imputation the name of England would have been forever infamous if, for the sake of interest of any kind, we had violated the general law of nations, and made war with those slaveholding States of America against the Federal States."

I have the honor to be, gentlemen, your most obedient servant, W. R. G. MELLEN,
United States Consul.

A Curious Secret Circular.

PROOFS OF REBEL PLOTTING IN 1860.

Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Tuesday, April 19, 1864.

I have to-day come in possession of a secret circular, issued at Charleston five months before the firing on Sumter. The document is genuine. It is signed by one of the wealthiest and ablest lawyers of South Carolina, and the copy which I inclose to the Tribune was addressed to one of the most prominent and influential citizens of Alabama—a Huntsville rebel whom Gen. LOGAN ordered south of our lines.

It should be borne in mind that this circular was issued before the meeting of the Congress of 1860-'61—before the introduction of the Crittenden resolutions—before the Peace Congress. Yet now, after nearly three years of unparalleled war, you find incompetent officers and unworthy citizens proposing these same "disclaimers and overtures."

The italics in the following copy of the circular are mine:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, "THE 1860 ASSOCIATION,"
CHARLESTON, Nov. 10, 1860.

In September last, several gentlemen of Charleston met to confer in reference to the position of the South in the event of the election of Mr. LINCOLN and the Republican party to power. This informal meeting was the origin of the organization known in this community as "The 1860 Association."

The objects of the association are:

1. To conduct a correspondence with leading men in the South, and by an interchange of information and views, prepare the Slave States to meet the impending crisis.

2. To prepare, print and distribute in the Slave States, tracts, pamphlets, &c., designed to awaken them to a conviction of their danger, and to urge the necessity of resisting Northern and Federal aggression.

3. To inquire into the defences of the State and to collect and arrange information which may aid the Legislature to establish promptly, an effective military organization.

To effect these objects, a brief and simple constitution was adopted, creating a President, a Secretary and Treasurer, and an Executive Committee, specially charged with conducting the business of the Association. 100,000 pamphlets have been published, and demands for further supplies are received from every quarter. The association is going on adding several of these through a second and third edition.

The conventions in several of the Southern States will soon be elected. The North is preparing to soothe and conciliate the South by disclaimers and overtures. The success of this policy would be disastrous to the cause of Southern union and independence, and it is necessary to resist and defeat it. The association is preparing pamphlets with this special object. Funds are necessary to enable it to act promptly. "The 1860 Association" is laboring for the South, and asks your aid.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
ROBERT N. GOURDIN,
Chairman of the Executive Committee.

The Sioux Indians to be Exterminated.

The St. Louis correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette writes that the largest Indian expedition ever fitted out on the continent is now moving toward Idaho, having for its object the subjugation or extermination of the Sioux Indians. The entire business of organizing, equipping and completing this mammoth enterprise has been conducted under Brig.-Gen. SULLY—headquarters in this city.

The expedition will number three thousand cavalry and mounted infantry, with eight or ten pieces of cannon, and such a force of friendly Indians, consisting of Mandans, Rees, Crows, Delawares and Shawnees, as Gen. SULLY can secure, to act either as scouts, spies or warriors. The object is to rid the entire territory west of the Missouri River of the hostile savage, and leave it free from danger for the occupation of the thousands of emigrants flocking to the district where gold mines abound.

Gen. SULLY will establish infantry posts from Idaho to the Missouri River and across to Minnesota, and he fully intends to make no half-work of the undertaking. It is quite significant that the Government takes unusual interest in this Indian expedition, the secret of which, it is not found in the rich mines of Idaho, will hardly be found elsewhere. It is manifestly to the interest of the Government to protect the emigration of miners to Idaho, and this can only be done by an enterprise as large and powerful as that committed to the experience of Gen. SULLY. The General suggested to the War Department the idea of using a number of the rebel prisoners now in our hands as soldiers in this expedition, but no communication was received in return, and the presumption is the idea was not approved.

Gen. SULLY's opinion that several hundred material among the rebel prisoners, many of whom are not only willing but anxious to take the oath of allegiance, is probably correct; also that the use thus made of them would serve to break them into a peaceable allegiance to the old Government sooner; but the War Department probably concluded that the resources of the North are quite sufficient to achieve all the purposes of the Government, and that its history will present a clearer page by not making any use whatsoever of those who have taken up arms to destroy it. Gen. SULLY will leave for active duties in the field in the course of the coming ten days.

RESOLUTION.

By Alderman Ottiwell—

Whereas, The recent action of the proprietors of some of the principal lines of omnibuses in increasing their rates of fare, in violation of an ordinance one hundred per cent, imperatively demand of the hands of the Common Council some action that will effectually guard the rights and interests of the public, and that will intervene between the exactions of this class of public carriers and those of our citizens who are compelled to use their vehicles; and

Whereas, the Charter of the City, both ancient and modern, original and as amended, reposes in the corporate authorities certain rights, privileges and immunities, among the most important of which is the control of the streets, avenues, lanes and highways within the corporate limits of the City, embracing the entire Island of Manhattan; vesting in said corporate authorities the right to determine by whom and in what manner such streets, avenues, lanes and highways shall be used for the public benefit; and

Whereas, the right to run vehicles for carrying passengers in the streets of this City is a valuable franchise, and should be used by the City authorities in such manner as to confer the most benefits to the advantage of the City Treasury and our tax-payers. A due regard for the right of others to the unobstructed use and occupation of the streets and public highways of the same time conferred by the City authorities; be it therefore

Resolved, That a joint Special Committee of three members of each branch of the Common Council be appointed for the purpose of taking into consideration the advantages or expediency of disposing at public auction and to the highest bidder, subject to such restrictions and regulations as shall be imposed by the Common Council, the right to carry passengers in stage coaches or omnibuses, through the streets of this City, either along the routes of the present stage lines or others to be designated by the City authorities; also that such Special Committee report upon the propriety of interpleiting the travel of stage coaches or omnibuses for carrying passengers in or through any of the streets south of Chambers-street; and further, that such Special Committee make such suggestion and recommendation touching the subject hereby committed for their examination, as in their judgments may be relevant to the question, and of importance sufficient to warrant the early action of the Common Council.

Which was adopted.

By Alderman Ottiwell—

Whereas, The charter or grant from the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York to Abraham Berry and John Aleite, to establish and maintain a ferry from Pier number thirty-five, East River, New-York, to Williamsburgh, Long Island, affirmed and dated December fourteen, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-two, the terminus of which said ferry was by resolution approved July twenty-third, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine, changed to James-slip, Hunter's Point, and Hunter's Point, Long Island, provides, among other things, that such lessees of said ferry, their heirs, executors, administrators or assigns, shall not, during the term of said lease, which expires December fourteen, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, charge or receive, as rates of ferriage for passage, and for vehicles and the transportation of goods, a sum to exceed that of the Peck-slip Ferry; and

Whereas, Such lessees or other persons now operating said ferry from James-slip and Hunter's Point, now are and for some time past have been charging and receiving for ferriage on said ferry, rates in excess of those charged by the Peck-slip ferry, as provided in the lease thereof; be it therefore

Resolved, That the Comptroller is hereby authorized and directed to notify the lessees or proprietors of said ferry that they are required strictly to conform to the provision of their lease; and that in case of a non-compliance with such notification, then that the Comptroller be, and he is hereby duly authorized, empowered and directed to exact or enforce the penalty contained in the provision in their lease aforesaid, which is as follows: Provided always and these presents, and the premises hereby demised are upon this express condition, that if it should so happen that the said yearly rent, or any part thereof, should be behind and unpaid for the space of thirty after any day of payment, in which the same, or any part thereof ought to be paid as aforesaid; or if the said party of the second part, (the lessees) their executors, administrators or assignees, shall neglect to pay, perform, fulfill and keep any of either of the payments, articles, covenants, conditions, agreements, and matters and things herein contained, which on their part are to be paid, performed, fulfilled, observed and kept during the term aforesaid, according to the true intent and meaning of these presents, that then, and in every such case and cause, it shall and may be lawful to and for the said parties of the first part, the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York, their successors and assignees, to enter into and upon the premises hereby demised, and to have, possess and hold the same as fully as though these presents had not been made, anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.
